Heat Up, Stocks Down.
Mexico's Six-Year Plan.
Mr. O'Connell Returns.
The Wind in Florida.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN NEW YORK CITY yesterday the thermometer went up, while stocks went down. The thermometer climbed to the hundred in the shade, hottest July 31 of all time. The other hottest July 31, with the thermometer at 98, occurred in 1917, just after this country plundered into the World War. Perhaps today's temperature celebrates the beginning of the anti-depression war, now well under way.

WHILE THE thermometer climbed up, stock and grain quotations went down. Stocks fell from $1 to $11 a share. Wheat dropped five cents as far as the new law will let it drop in any one day.

Speculators on the "bull side" are protected by law against terrific drops, but enough five-cent drops, in succession, could be sufficiently disastrous.

MEXICO HAS a "revival of prosperity" plan. Plutarco Elias Calles, Mexico's "iron man" and former president, will have charge of the undertaking, running over six years.

This country is gratified by the statement that Mexico includes in its plan a trade agreement with the United States.

Gen. Calles tells ten thousand Mexican workmen that the world is about to face a most serious crisis and that Mexico will co-operate fully with other American countries.

MEXICO LOOKS forward to economic war among continents," and will, naturally, stick with this continent. It is unfortunate that Canada, by political alignment, is necessarily tied up with non-American interests.

The ideal "League of Nations" would include everything on this continent, from Terra del Fuego to the North Pole.

And that will come some day, not by any absorption, but by natural, inevitable agreement.

Meanwhile, all possible success to Mexico, in her six-year plan.

JOHN O'CONNELL, JR., kidnaped in Albany, is returned in care of Louis Snyder, lawyer for the "contact man," who is supposed to have arranged for payment of $42,500 ransom.

"All concerned are reticent," refuse to give any details.

Technically, however, ransoming a kidnaped man is compounding a felony. Now that the young man is safely back, United States authorities might insist on knowing a few details.

There is no proof that the kidnaped man was not carried from one state to another, and in any case, the government can interfere, if it chooses. It ought to choose.

ON SUNDAY night, at eight thirty, news agencies in New York reported a high wind from the East striking Florida at Fort Pierce and Miami, with some wires down. The facts as given by news agencies were referred to in a radio broadcast, by this writer, with the statement added that the "high wind" amounted to little.

A telegram from Mr. Hollums, of the Miami Herald, and another from the Jacksonville Journal bring the information that the big wind was a northern concoction. Florida knew nothing about it.

THE IMPORTANT fact, which should be widely known, is that there are NEVER any high winds in Florida during the tourists' season.

October sees the end of them, as the government weather bureau assures you, and for those of common sense there is no danger, even in the high winds that do blow in from the Caribbean at rare intervals.

They move slowly, revolving as they move, going no faster than eight or nine miles an hour. You can drive away from them, in any small car, or go off to one side, and let them revolve past you.

"Germany's beer exports to United States soar."

Why should that newspaper heading be printed in America? Germany makes excellent beer. The United States makes beer just as good, if not better, in Milwaukee, New York, St. Louis, Newark, on the Pacific Coast, and in hundreds of breweries all over the United States.

Beer made here employs American labor at good wages and buys grain, barley, rice and hops grown by American farmers.

Why should American beer drinkers employ foreign labor, and pay for foreign farm products?

IF WE want to promote prosperity in the United States, why not forbid importation of beer, wine, alcoholic spirits and dozens of other things that can be made here as well or better?

These are code days. The President cannot apply any code to foreign producers, and Americans, producing and employing "under the code," should not compete with code-free foreigners."

IN OLD DAYS, when barbarous tribes fought "civilized soldiers," determined barbarian, with the fussild tribes and religious fanaticism supporting him, could make much trouble. England many good men, fighting peppery rebels, sending men on and forto drive them from their ham, N hills and rocky fastnesses. The airplane, with bombs and machine guns, has simplified that.

At present on India's northest frontier a rebel whom the British call "the mad fakir" uses trouble, stirring up the tribes. But there is no sending of soldiers to be shot down from ambush.

Four squadrons of British bombing planes are standing by. Warnings have been dropped from the clouds, telling what

Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil millionaire, kidnaped July 22 by machine gunners, was safe at home today. Arthur Seeligson, spokesman for the Urschel family, admitted a ransom had been paid. The amount was not divulged.

President Roosevelt opened an inquiry into means of battling the kidnaping racket in a conference today with Raymond Moley, assistant Secretary of State.

Manny Strewl, who effected the return of John J. O'Connell, Jr., kidnaped Albany (N. Y.) youth, has been taken into custody for questioning. He handled the $40,000 ransom payment which the O'Connell family gave for young O'Connell's return.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, of New York, has asked the State Legislature to make it a felony for the family of a kidnaped person to pay ransom.

He strode out of the rain across his threshold at the stroke of midnight, ending nine days as the hostage of kidnapers whose swarthy machine-gunmen rushed him from a bridge game in his mansion the night of July 22.

Then, with but brief greetings

PRESIDENT ACTS IN KIDNAPINGS

HYDE PARK, N. Y. Aug 1.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt opened a special inquiry into means of battling the kidnaping racket in a conference today with Raymond Moley, intimate adviser and assistant Secretary of State.

The Moley conference follows closely the organization of an enlarged bureau of investigation in the Department of Justice. Mr. Roosevelt is determined to give full federal co-operation to the states in the drive against stealing in human lives.

Also, there is indication he will suggest shortly to governors of the states a uniform method of attack against this newest of rackets which is flourishing at alarming rate.

Every importance was attached to the anti-kidnaping conference by the President. He is known to favor and be organizing a super-police force—a sort of national Scotland Yard—to go to work with state and local authorities against kidnaping.

Huey Long Suffers Food Poison Attack

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Senator Huey P. Long was confined to bed at his home last night with what members of the family said was an attack of food poisoning, but his condition was not considered serious

The Senator's daughter, Miss Rose Long, said the family physician had given her father a medicine to induce sleep.

Bank at Carnegie To Reopen Friday

The Union National Bank of Carnegie will open for business without any restrictions on Friday. F. C. Hopper, conservator for the bank, declared today that the bank has been licensed and that he has been ordered to turn the institution over to its board of directors.

This action will release nearly $500,000 of deposits.

CODE OPENS 1,000,000 NEW JOBS

Store Agreements Go Into Effect At Once

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—A million new jobs, scattered through retail shops, big and small, from end to end of the country, were held possible today because Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, had ordered into immediate effect hour-reducing, wage-raising agreements presented by the nation's storekeepers.

Dwarfing even the agreements of fair practice of steel and oil, the new codes had swept into the industrial control movement all the organized dealers in foodstuffs, furniture, clothing, shoes, hardware, dry goods, department stores, specialty shops and mail order houses.

1,000,000 NEW JOBS

The door was open to the thousands of retailers not members of any association to join the subscribing groups or to come in through the individual voluntary presidential agreement.

Officials estimated that application of these codes would provide 1,000,000 new jobs, that the retail lines represented employ-4,000,000 men and women.

The food dealers, by Johnson's order, will have a 48-hour work week, the rest just 40. The grocer clerks will have an eight-hour day except the day just before holidays, and an additional 12 days each six months when they may work 10 hours.

The scale of minimum wages for food dealers is $15 in cities over 500,000; $14.50, between 250,000 and 500,000; $14 between 2,500 and 250,000.

The non-food retailers had a minimum scale a dollar lower with a further $1 reduction for the 15 southern states and the District of Columbia. The same regional reduction applies to the food dealers.

MINIMUM OPERATION

Besides the wage terms, the two codes called for maintenance of a minimum of 52 hours' operation unless recent practice was lower, and they bar all child labor except

RAIN TO BREAK INTENSE HEAT

Local thunder showers late today and tonight were expected to break the intense heat wave enveloping this district, along with the eastern half of the country.

Cloudy skies likely will keep temperatures below those of yesterday. Observer W. S. Brotzman said. The mercury reached 89 in midafternoon. Cooler weather is predicted for tomorrow.

Yesterday's peak was 93 at 6 p. m., one degree below the record for that date.

One death, that of 8-month-old Robert J. Kearns, of 707 North Mathilda street, last night, was attributed to the heat, according to the Coroner's records.

BULLETIN

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 1.—Louis Padorsky, 38, of LaBelle, shot while on picket duty at Colonial Mine No. 3, of the H. C. Frick Coke Company early today, died this afternoon in Brownsville General Hospital.

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 1.—Bullets and tear gas sent more than a dozen men to hospitals today as women and children were imperilled in renewed outbreaks in the seething strike area of the Connellsville coke region.

A summary of the day's disorders follows:

Six pickets shot, one critically, in the clash between strikers and deputies of the H. C. Frick Coke Company at Star Junction.

Two pickets shot; two gassed seriously and 300 sprayed with gas and riot gun slugs in three outbreaks at Colonial No. 3 Mine of the Frick Company.

One picket shot by pair leaving Frick mine at Edenborn in automobile bearing New Jersey license.

WOMEN PERILED

In addition to the six hit by bullets at Star Junction, a score, including women and children, were affected by tear gas bombs hurled by the deputies. One bullet, entering a home, missed a sleeping baby by inches.

Meanwhile 325 officers and men of the Pennsylvania National Guard remained in the camp overlooking Brownsville. The troops, fatigued after 36 hours of constant vigil, were not on patrol, but were kept in readiness to answer riot calls, Maj. Kenneth W. Momeyer explained.

At Star Junction, pickets reported they halted several men on their way to the mine and were talking to them on the highway when deputy sheriffs came up, threw tear gas and opened fire.

SHOTS FIRED

Scores of shots and many bombs were exploded, the pickets said. Bullets went through nearby houses and in one home, pickets reported a baby narrowly escaped death. They said many women and children were in the crowd fired upon and were blinded by the tear gas.

Those wounded were Joseph Mulien, 25, of Allison, six bullet wounds in side; Donald Slagle, 28, of Allison, wounded in leg and shoulder; John Felansky, 24, of Allison, wounded in head and arms; John Matty, 44, of Brownsville, wounded in abdomen and chest; Mike Yaksuch, 43, of Allison, shot in leg and arm; Latsko, 24, of Allison, wounded in back, leg, arm and hand. All were taken to hospitals.

SHOTS FIRED

Disorder occurred about 2:30 this morning when 27 automobiles, loaded with deputies and strike-

Relief Worker Relates Horror Of Mine Battle

By MRS. FRANCES COPELAND
Volunteer Relief Worker Who Accompanied State Investigator Joseph Washington into Star Junction less than an Hour After Today's Rioting.

STAR JUNCTION, Pa., Aug. 1.—Never in my life have I talked with people so terror-stricken, so absolutely petrified as those striking miners and their families at Star Junction today.

Concrete evidence of the thing they fear was dug out of the walls of their homes—cruel, cold, merciless bullets.

I stood at Mr. Washington's side as he probed into the plaster walls over beds out of which crawled crazed mothers of babies, who themselves miraculously escaped death or serious injury. I saw evidence of things I have often heard, but never could somehow or other reconcile as in the realm of possibility.

SLUGS OF DEATH

I stood aghast as Mr. Washington turned to me and placed in my hands some of the death-dealing pellets of lead. I asked myself:

"Has this thing actually happened in a civilized community?"

We were at Allison this morning when the first group of terrorized survivors rushed in, breathlessly,

Pirates and Cards Open Series Here

FORBES FIELD, Aug. 1.—Frank Frisch made his Pittsburgh debut as manager this afternoon as the St. Louis Cardinals opened a four-game series with the Pirates. Each club was striving to protect a winning streak as the hot series got underway. The Pirates had won seven in succession while the Redbirds owned six triumphs in a row.

FLEEING BANDIT SUSPECT SLAIN

A bandit suspect was killed early today after he and a companion, surprised during an alleged holdup of a Upper St. Clair Township roadhouse, exchanged shots with a constable and two county detectives.

Searching for a bandit gang terrorizing the section, Constable Ross Carlisle and County Detectives Frank Ritz and Robert McMillen passed the Rose Garden Inn, Bower Hill road, and saw Attilio Ferraro, a proprietor, his hands upraised. Two men covered him with guns.

As the police entered the roadhouse one of the bandit suspects shot at Carlisle. Carlisle returned the fire, the bullet hitting Stanley Ofsanka, 28, of Strabane.

He and his companion, Clarence Morton, 26, also of Strabane, were overtaken after a short chase.

Ofsanka died in Mercy Hospital.

The proprietors of the roadhouse, Ferraro and Jack DeLangi, were arrested for alleged violation of the firearms act and the Snyder act, according to the detectives.

County Granted Right to Run Buses to Parks

The County of Allegheny today won the right to operate buses to the North and South Parks.

In Harrisburg the Public Service Commission granted the county's application.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern has been leading the fight for the county buses as a protest against the fares charged by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company and other lines.

However, since the application was filed the commercial lines have been operated temporarily under reduced fares to the parks. McGovern has said the county line will be held in abeyance pending developments.

STRIKE SPREADS TO MINES HERE

A general tie-up of the coal output in Southwestern Pennsylvania loomed today as the mine strike spread in Allegheny County, affecting union as well as non-union mines.

Miners quit work in increasing numbers to go on picket lines at plants that have been in operation on a non-union basis. A strike call had not been issued from district offices of the United Mine Workers of America.

Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation mines which have been operating under union agreements, were affected. Union leaders protested without avail.

Nudist Cult on Campus! Faculty in Uproar

TUCSON, Ariz., Aug. 1.—(INS.)—University of Arizona officials launched an investigation today into allegations by a student magazine that a widespread nudist cult had sprung up on the campus.

The publication, Skull Matter, declared that men and women students were going on moonlight swimming parties and daytime picnics into canyon retreats without clothes. A statement by Jack Bryan, editor, that "nakedness is justified" has thrown the faculty into an uproar.

The article said:

"With a tendency among both sexes of students to scoff at Arizona heat and to find wholesale enjoyment in each other's company by stripping off sometimes for an invigorating bath in canyon pools, irrigation ditches or ultra violet, there has come an increase also in popular tolerance of nudity. When they stripped down a little, they discovered that the body was neither altogether ugly nor its exposure especially conducive to wickedness."

The article charged that the "philosophy of nudism" was gaining in spite of an "occasional sorority expulsion of the few girls whom the virtuists have managed to spy upon during private efforts of these girls to enjoy the sunshine and mountain streams provided unblushingly by nature."

Restaurant Association Fighting Beer Bars

Another beer war broke out in Pittsburgh today.

Applications to have the beer-selling licenses of four prominent restaurants revoked were filed with the County Treasurer's office.

The complaints were filed by Attorney James A. Wright, acting for the Western Pennsyvania Restaurant Association.

The places named were Donahoe's Oyster Restaurant at 421 Smithfield street; the Oyster Bar at 5 Masters [illegible] Dan Henry's in Diamond street, and "Al's" Grill in Diamond street.

The association complains that at all of these places beer is being sold over a bar, which, it is contended, is in violation of the Pennsylvania beer law.

At the offices of Donahoe's and Dutch Henry's it was said there was no comment at this time on the action. Officials of the Oyster Bar and "Al's" Grill were absent from their offices.

AGREEMENTS GO INTO EFFECT AT ONCE

Momentum Given to Recovery Program Of President

those over 14 for three hours between 7 a. m., and 7 p. m.

A majority development following the retail store order was presentation of a separate code to cover the country's five and ten cent stores.

This was stated authoritatively to call for longer work hours and lower wages than the general retail agreement. No concession, however, was in sight from the administration.

One official said:

"They must all come under the 40-hour work limit except food dealers.

"That includes drug stores. They have not yet presented their code formally, but we have told them that they can use the professional category exemption from hour limitation for their pharmacists and for the rest they must keep the 40 hours.

"If they can actually separate the food end of their business, that section may be run under the 48-hour limit of the food dealers' code."

AWAIT RESTAURANTS

Restaurants also have not been heard from officially but the understanding was that Johnson would seek to have them also keep the 48-hour limitation.

The two agreements for retailers and food dealers will be in force only temporarily, pending hearings at which their terms may be revised before becoming permanent. But those who subscribe to them now may obtain the Blue Eagle poster of NIRA just like those who comply with the voluntary wage-raising, hour-reducing presidential agreement.

Increasing thousands were signing the latter. Today the post-offices all over the cou try began distributing in earnest the distinctive insignia which go to those who "do their part." The grand total of applicants was not known, but the Recovery Administration aff at last had added up the elegrams ard letters that replied to President Roosevelt's national appeal for co-operation.

50,000 PLEDGES

Fifty thousand personal messages were in that stack. Thirty thousand telegrams, 20,000 letters. Not all were pledges to aid the presidential program, but dissenters and cranks were a small minority.

Equally important was the increasing momentum in dealing with actual, concrete codes of fair competition for individual industries. The stack of four or five hundred which accumulated at the offices here has been digested, reduced to those which are in shape for handling, and are being moved up to the hearing stage.

More interpretations were made available today to speed questioners into signing the general voluntary agreements. All news men, editors and reporters, alike, together with internes, nurses and hospital technicians, were lumped into the professional category and therefore exempt from work-hour limits. Window-cleaners and charwomen were were included in the 40-hour so-called white collar class, which ranges from clerical and banking employes to deliverymen.

Non-profit associations were defined as employers for purposes of the act. Provision was made for the smallest establishments, run by the owner without help, to obtain the NIRA eagle poster by signing the agreement and certificate of compliance.

Four German Reds Executed on Block

ALTONA, Germany, Aug 1.—(INS.)—Four Communists were executed on the block today for killing two Nazi storm troopers in a political riot last winter.

The killings occurred on one of the so-called "bloody Sundays" prior to advent of the Hitler regime. Capt. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussian premier and minister without portfolio, refused to pardon the prisoners.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Elwood D. King, 81, who went for the doctor when former President Herbert Hoover was born, died last night.

Mr. King attended school at West Branch, Ia., and one of his schoolmates was Jesse Hoover, father of the former President. He later worked in the Hoover blacksmith shop and and stayed at the Hoover home.

Rules on NRA Advertising

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Publishers of newspapers, magazines and other publications and manufacturers of advertising literature or stationery are permitted to have engraved and to reproduce the NRA eagle emblem for clients only on presentation of written statements by the latter that they have signed the President's agreement.

This is provided by a formal regulation issued by the Recovery Administration to prevent use of the emblem by persons not authorized to display it.

The industrial law's general penalty of $500 fine or six months' imprisonment for violating regulations is applicable to this one also.

On filing the written statement, the advertiser must attach to it a sticker, 1¼ inches in size, which he can obtain through his post-office only upon complying with the agreement.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The Recovery Administration has not yet figured out an official way for postmasters to display the names of employers who have put the NRA wage and hour agreement into force, but pending a ruling it expects them to use their own judgment.

Before posting names, the postmasters are expected to check their lists of compliance certificates with the signed agreements on file at the regional Department of Commerce office in charge of their area, to make sure that every requirement has been met.

Meantime, the campaign workers are being besieged by requests from chambers of commerce for authority to display the names of signers both on public square bulletin boards of the community chest type and in columns to be published by local papers. A definite ruling is to be given shortly.

Shoals Dam Named For Senator Norris

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—The long years that Senator George W. Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, spent in battling for federal development of Muscle Shoals are to be rewarded by perpetuating his name in the largest unit of the project.

Cove Creek Dam, a $35,000,000 project, is hereafter to be known as Norris Dam, the board of directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority decided today.

JOB HOPES JOIN CITY, COUNTY

The wisdom of plans for co-operation between city and county in applying for their share of the $3,300,000,000 the Federal government is prepared to spend to restore employment was shown today when the public works administration announced a preference for co-ordinated projects.

A copy of its rules and regulations said that projects integrated with and consistent with other plans rather than isolated or inconsistent would be preferred.

Projects to be started promptly are to be preferred to those requiring delay, as are projects near centers of unemployment.

Joseph C. Trees, chairman-to-be of the state advisory board on public works, has already said that, as a center of unemployment, he feels Allegheny County and Pittsburgh are to be given special consideration.

Co-operation in application and co-ordination in proposals has been promised by County Commissioner C. C. McGovern and Mayor John S. Herron. A conference between the two, selection of a joint committee to formulate the proposals and an early meeting with Trees are planned.

Senator Johnson's Son Ends His Life

Code Clarified Further

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—New interpretations to clarify the President's voluntary re-employment agreement were issued last night by the Recovery Administration, among them one providing for businessmen without employes obtaining the NRA eagle insignia.

These may get the co-operators' emblem by signing the agreement and certificate of compliance.

Other rulings:

Professional men, exempt from application of hour limits, include reporters, editorial writers, rewrite men and other members of newspaper editorial staffs; internes, nurses, hospital technicians and research technicians.

The "white collar" worker class limited to 40 work hours a week includes maintenance forces such as charwomen, window cleaners, etc.

Employes receiving $35 or more per week whose duties are in part but not wholly managerial or executive are not under work hour limits.

Non-profit organizations are counted as employers for all purposes of the agreement.

Trade areas of larger communities are defined as the territory in which there exists direct competion. If the question arises, the decision should be made by a Chamber of Commerce or similar organization subject to review by the state recovery board.

TRADE GROUPS SPEED NEW CODES HERE

U.S. Commerce Official To Discuss NIRA At Meeting

First direct contact between Pittsburgh and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's national recovery organization will take place Thursday when John Dickinson, assistant secretary of commerce, will address a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

The commerce official will outline the President's re-employment program for the special information of the Pittsburgh campaign committee of the National Recovery Administration. Members of the committee have been invited to bring business friends to the meeting.

CODE PARLEYS UNDERWAY

Meanwhile, various trade associations and industrial groups were putting the finishing touches to their fair competition agreements and setting their houses in order for operation under the President's blanket recovery code.

A second meeting of an arbitration committee of the Dyers and Cleaners' Association, representing 72 plant owners, 2,500 employes and 1,500 retail shops, this afternoon was to adjust differences that have arisen in the preparation of a fair practice code.

AUTO DEALERS AGREE

Automobile dealers of Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia were agreed today on a work code for presentation to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson in Washington.

The code, if approved, will bring 40 hour weeks to all but "white collar" help, who must work 48 hours a week. Mechanics will have a minimum of 60 cents an hour, their helpers 35 cents, "white collar" help a minimum of $13 a week.

A wage increase, averaging between 16 and 18 per cent, was put into effect today by the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company. The firm announced that it expects to operate under a code of ethics being drawn up by the American Refractories Institute, soon to be submitted to the President.

A meeting of truck operators in Allegheny County will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at 458 Melwood street, to discuss a code being drafted by the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association.

Pending adoption of the oil code, now receiving hearings in Washington, the Gulf Oil Company today signed the President's blanket re-employment agreement, it was announced at the general offices here. The agreement, providing for a maximum wage of $15 and maximum work week of 40 hours, will go into effect immediately.

Code Gives Break To 'One-Man' Store Owner

Moorhead says he has accepted the code, has increased his pay and cut his working hours. He explained:

Store Codes Outlined In Detail

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Codes for the retail trade under which stores operate temporarily pending the completion of a permanent agreement, divide this industry into two sections:

(1) The furniture, hardware, mail order, clothiers and furnishers, department stores, specialty shops, shoe and dry goods retailers.

(2) The grocery and food stores. (Drug stores and gasoline filling stations are not included under either classification.)

Merchandisers

Provisions governing groups:

No employe may be worked for more than 40 hours per week, except at Christmas, inventory and peak periods, when a 48-hour maximum shall rule.

The exceptions are executives whose salaries exceed $35 per week, or registered pharmacists or other professional persons employed in their professions or outside salesmen, and except outside delivery men and maintenance employes, who may be employed 48 hours weekly or more, if paid time and one-third for all hours above 48 hours weekly.

The agreement specifies the code shall not reduce the hours of any store or service operation to less than 52 hours in any one week unless such hours obtained before July, and in this latter case not to reduce these hours at all.

The 40-hour maximum of the blanket code shall not apply to employes in establishments employing not more than two persons in towns of less than 2,500, which towns are not part of a larger trade area.

In cities of more than 500,000, 1930 Federal census, or in the immediate trade area of such cities, $14 per week.

Cities to 500,000

In cities from 100,000 to 500,000 or in their trade area, $13.50 per week. In places with a population from 2,500 to 100,000 unless included in large trade areas, $13 per week.

In the South are included: Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Maryland, District of Columbia, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas.

In places of less than 2,500 in the entire United States, wages shall be increased by not less than 20 per cent, provided they do not exceed $11 per week.

Exceptions are that union employes between 16 and 18 years of age, with less than six months' experience, shall be paid $2 less for a work week than provided in the blanket code and that apprentices and employes of more than 18 years of age with less than six months' experience in one store shall be paid $1 less per week, provided the minimum is not less than $11 per week.

Grocery Stores

Provisions for grocery and food stores:

Stores defined as any wholly or partially distributing food wholesale or retail, commonly known as grocery stock.

Employes allowed to bargain collectively, and not to be forced to join company union.

Maximum hours to be 48 hours per week, and none to work more than eight hours in one 24-hour period except on days preceding legal holidays, and on an additional 12 days in any six-month period when the hours shall not exceed 10 hours.

Minimum hours for store operations to be 52.

Publishing Company Raises Wages 10 Pct.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The Curtis Publishing Company today had raised the wages of all office and factory employes at its Philadelphia plant, other than executives, salesmen and others in special positions.

The increase, slightly in excess of 10 per cent, will boost the earnings of the employes about $500,000 a year, and restore the wage scale of the company to almost the levels of 1929.

36,000 New Jobs Created in Gotham

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—A total of 36,000 new jobs has already resulted from the NRA campaign in the New York metropolitan area, James F. Hodgson, district manager, estimated today. He made his estimate on the basis that each of the firms signed up under the blanket code would hire two additional workers.

ELABORATE SPY SYSTEM LAID TO U. S. STEEL

Caused Miss Perkins' Homestead Rebuff, Says Union Man

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—A system of espionage alleged to have been carried on by large steel companies in spying on each other and in scrutinizing acts of their employes has gained important consideration in the steel code hearing before the National Recovery Administration.

The subject was brought out forcibly by Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, in an address at the opening of the hearing yesterday.

Charges reiterated by John J. Meldon, of Pittsburgh, secretary-treasurer of the National Iron and Steelowrkers' Union, and 16 of his colleagues from the Pittsburgh district, have made it a major issue.

'ELABORATE SYSTEM'

Meldon charged the United States Steel Corporation with maintaining an elaborate spy system which, he testified before Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery Administrator, is maintained in the Frick Building in Pittsburgh.

He asserted this organization reported the activities of the company's workmen who joined labor unions. Its ramifications, he said, were endless, and asserted the operation of Burgess John J. Cavanaugh in preventing Miss Perkins from meeting steel workers on public property in Homestead last Friday was a result of the espionage system.

Miss Perkins emphasized the dangers of espionage and referred to complaints against the system but she ignored the action of the Homestead police under Cavanaugh's orders, which compelled her to hold her meeting with the workers in the postoffice.

Negotiations On Steel Code Under Way

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The Recovery Administration today analyzed and digested information produced at hearings yesterday on the steel code in preparation for suggesting changes or recommending its approval by the President.

With hearings completed, code entered a stage of negotiation between spokesmen for the steel industry and the administration. Few changes were expected, however, as the elimination of the company union provision by the industry brought it largely into line with the ideas of the administration.

Foremost amongst the suggestions arising from the hearings was a proposal by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that employes of steel companies, where the company union has been in effect, be permitted to vote in secret on whether they would prefer to continue this form of representation or organize unions of their own.

COMPANY UNION

This proposal was made after the industry had acceded to the wishes of the administration and eliminated the company union provisions which were inserted in the code as proposed to express the steel men's belief in the open shop and in the company union method of dealing with employes.

Administrator Hugh S. Johnson asserted the provision in question was meaningless and should be withdrawn. In agreeing to do this, Robert P. Lamont, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, served notice that it meant no change in the attitude of the operators and that they would do what they could to continue the company union.

Green argued that in making this assertion the steel men were not conforming with the spirit of the national recovery law and proposed the voting method of determining what form of union should be used.

H. Philip Stone, representing tinworkers of New Castle, Pa., asked that the code terms be changed to provide a 36-hour week and weekly wages based on the average 1925 to 1930 level, which, he said, would approximate a 30 per cent increase in most plants. He proposed also that in the future wages for tinworkers be scaled up and down in relation to the selling prices of tinplate and the purchase value of commodities.

The Rev. J. Paul Cotton, pastor of a Bethlehem (Pa.) church, said that under present conditions no steel worker would dare speak frankly of conditions in the industry. He proposed a $50,000 limit for salaries of all steel executives, a six-hour work day, with a 30-hour week, and said 50 cents an hour was the lowest acceptable wage.

How Code Boosts Steel Employment

Independent steel companies of the Pittsburgh district are expected to employ 12,965 more men and the United States Steel Corporation, 26,000 additional men in the plants throughout the country, as a result of the 40-hour week under the industrial code.

The Steel Corporation is expected to employ a total of 165,931 men compared with 139,622 in 1929 and 1930.

	Men Employed July 1, 1933	Expected Under The Code
Jones & Laughlin	14,439	20,490
Wheeling Steel	12,633	14,426
Pittsburgh Steel Company	4,998	7,159

Senator Veils Identity On Hospital Death Bed

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The motive that led Karl Cortlandt Schuyler, former United States Senator from Colorado, to veil his identity 11 days as he lay dying from injuries inflicted by an automobile remained undetermined today.

The 56-year-old lawyer and businessman, a leading figure in Denver for years, died last night at Lenox Hill Hospital. The cause of death was a fractured pelvis suffered when an automobile knocked him down in Central Park, July 17.

Schuyler declined at first to go to a hospital and when he finally consented, police and hospital authorities said, he was entered under the name "James Evans." Last Friday, when informed that his condition was grave, he identified himself to hospital attaches and asked that his wife in Colorado Springs be notified.

Mrs. Schuyler, the former Osena Shepard, of Colorado Springs, hurried to New York, arriving with a son, Karl C. Schuyler, Jr., who was present when he died. The body is planned to take the body to Denver today.

HIRAM JOHNSON SON SUICIDE OVER 'WOMEN'S LIES'

JUST DIVORCED, KIN OF SENATOR SHOOTS SELF

International News Service.

BURLINGAME, Cal., Aug. 1.—His heart pierced by a bullet, the body of Archibald M. Johnson, son of United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California, was found today in his home at Hillsborough, near here.

Hillsborough police said he had taken his own life, leaving notes to his father, mother and a friend Felton Elkins, of Santa Barbara.

The police, in search of a motive, announced that on a table beside the chair in which the body reclined was a dramatic "prayer," written in longhand and containing the phrase:

"Keep me, God, from compromise with honor, truth or woman's lies."

Concluding the "prayer" were these words:

"Forgive me, God, for all I've done to please that ever grasping one who took my very life."

RECENTLY DIVORCED

Johnson was recently divorced in Reno.

Frank Baker, butler in Johnson's palatial residence, reported that he found the body, pajama-clad, in the chair. On the table beside the notes and the "prayer" was a pistol with one shell discharged.

Johnson clubman, sportsman and World War hero, was divorced last May in Reno by Mrs. Martha Ruddy Johnson on the grounds of cruelty. She married Com. Howard A. Flanigan, U. S. N., in Chicago last month.

Headed "A Prayer," the composition found on the table beside the dead man read:

From one who stood at fortune's hand,
With all that Fortune might command,
And never thought of woe;
Who now stands stripped and naked there,
Where fortune cast him without care,
And halts to make a simple prayer,
Before his time to go,
Upon the lonesome road beyond;
Perhaps dear God you heard response.
Keep me, God, from being pleased,
One who's beaten to his knees,
In the game of life.
Keep me God from compromise,
With honor, truth or woman's lies,
'Ere I leave this strife.

'KEEP ME CLEAN'

The last paragraph started:

"Keep me God unsullied, clean;
"Keep me as I might have been."

Then there was a reference to "wife" and this closing plea:

"Forgive me God for all I've done."

Baker, the butler, said that Johnson came home last night from his law offices in San Francisco, complaining that he was tired. Baker said:

"I persuaded Mr. Johnson to put on his pajamas and sit around awhile before taking his bath. I rew the bath and went to bed.

"Early this morning I heard Mr. Johnson's dog barking and upon investigating found Mr. Johnson dead in the chair."

The three notes were sealed and deposited in an unsealed envelope. They were turned over to the grief stricken family, Senator and Mrs. Johnson and their other son, Hiram Johnson, Jr., whose law offices adjoined those of the dead man.

Senator Prostrated By Suicide of Son

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—From the law office of United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson the following statement was given out today over the Senator's name:

"All of our family are prostrated and in seclusion. I am unable to say more than that my dear son, Archibald M. Johnson, suffering from ill health and worry, shot himself this morning at 2:30."

FEVER MAY END GIRL'S LONG NAP

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Medical science has begun another effort to rouse 28-year-old Patricia Maguire from the sleep in which she has been for almost 18 months.

Her physician began treatments which consist of typhoic inoculations to produce a fever, which, it is hoped, will "burn out" the infection of sleeping sickness which has kept the girl in a coma since February, 1932.

Miss Maguire, an Oak Park girl, who was the secretary to a publisher, has been unconscious since the day she fell asleep in her home after suffering for a week or more with extreme drowsiness. During the long sleep she has contracted and recovered from pneumonia, has undergone a minor operation and has been given several blood transfusions.

The honor was awarded to his first novel to reach publication, "The Fault of Angels," which will be issued August 24. It is a satire on the arts in a provincial American city.

Jewish Charities To Share in Estate

Several Jewish charities will share in the $10,000 estate disposed of in the will of Joshua Neft, 5911 Phillips avenue, filed for probate today. His son-in-law, Dr. Samuel Zabarenko, will receive $500 and the balance goes to his three children, Mrs. Nellie Harris, Walter Neft and Mrs. Zabarenko.

The $69,000 estate of Mrs. Kate H. K. Dean, of Carnegie, is divided between her two children, Mrs. Marion McKee and Randolph Dean.

will soon happen. The mad fakir has replied by shooting with poor rifles at the planes out of range.

IF HE persists in being bad, the British airmen will keep their promise and the four squadrons will bomb the rebel villages. A few bomb explosions, a little scattering of machine gun bullets among rebel horsemen, will see the end of this mad fakir. His followers will conclude that there is something the matter with him and his gods that seem unable to hurt the British flying birds.

War has changed, in favor of the gas engine and explosive bomb.

POOR, DETERMINED, sincere Mahatma Gandhi is about to start another campaign against British authority. From time to time, he seems uncertain as to whether his real foe is British rule from abroad or rule by the caste system of India.

For the moment he is against British rule, and will fight it with another disobedience campaign.

As a start on his "new sacred mission," Gandhi will close his college of devotees, the only thing he possesses and cares for in the world. Some sacrifice, he says, is necessary.

VERY PATHETIC is this leader of 240,000,000 human beings, ruled by a small nation 7,000 miles away, with only 100,000 of its fighting men among the 300,000,000 of India.

Gandhi might learn from British history that the way to win independence is to fight for it, and make the other man sacrifice something. And Gandhi might learn something from the early history of this country, which also was ruled by England, and did not have 300,000,000 inhabitants.

AIMEE WEEPS AT HOMECOMING

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Aime Semple McPherson-Hutton staged her first tearful homecoming to Los Angeles today.

For years, she has been going away—and has been coming home again to the tune of hosannas and joyful hallelujas.

But today, facing the fact of the divorce recently filed by her 250-pound husband, Dave Hutton her greeting to thousands of Angelus Temple workers gathered at the railroad station was mixed with uncontrollable weeping.

"Los Angeles in 20 minutes."

Her tears began then. She sobbed:

"He sent me away. He sent for me to come back. And now this . . . Oh, David!"

MOTHER FIGHTS DEPORTATION IN COURT

Woman Prefers Death To Separation From Her Children

Mrs. Helen Bugla, 38, who says she would rather die than be separated from her four children, took her brood to Federal Court today to begin her fight against deportation to Poland.

She heard her counsel, M. Stancati, argue against the government deportation order, contending that once the Buglas were admitted to this country in 1926 the government could not reopen the case.

If Mrs. Bugla is deported her two oldest children must go with her. The youngest two were born in this country. Three years ago her husband, after a spell at Mayview, was deported. The family lives in Carnegie.

STRIKE PERILS BALBO HOP

The crew of 30 fishing boats hired to aid in refueling the 24 seaplanes on their arrival went on strike, demanding an eight-hour day and overtime pay.

Gen. Valle, chief of the Italian air staff, arrived here to confer with Gen. Balbo when the latter reaches Valentia. It was believed Gen Balbo will shortly be placed in supreme command of the navy, army and air ministries.

SHOAL HARBOR, Newfoundland, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—On the strength of favorable weather reports from Ireland today Gen. Italo Balbo and his air armada completed preparations for a take-off tomorrow on their Atlantic crossing en route back to Italy from the Chicago Exposition.

LORD, VETERAN EDITOR, DIES

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Chester S. Lord, 83, former managing editor of the New York Sun and chancellor of the Board of Regents of the State of New York, died early today at his home. He was on the staff of the Sun 42 years.

"Boss" Lord, as he was known to two generations of New York newspapermen, was one of the figures of metropolitan journalism who was responsible for shaping modern newspaper methods.

Born in Romulus, N. Y., the son of a minister, Lord first thought of following his father's profession, but after a year of study in that direction turned to newspaper work after selling a series of articles to the Utica, N. Y., Herald.

When he retired from the Sun in 1913, a single news paragraph appeared in the Sun's columns informing the public. It was the first time a Sun man had ever "made" the news columns of the paper.

MOVIE 'KIDDIE' PARTY ROUGH

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Hollywood was buzzing today about a "kiddie party" at which John Considine, Jr., received a black eye and bruises.

Considine, film producer and husband of Carmen Pantages, daughter of the theater magnate, attended a party Saturday night at the Santa Monica home of a screen actress. The guests all came garbed in baby dresses.

Meager reports said during the hilarity Considine was knocked down and kicked by one of the other "kiddies."

Lindberghs Make Greenland Flight

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, engaged in an aerial survey of northern areas, have returned to Holsteinborg, on the west coast of Greenland, after a flight northward to Ritenbenk, Greenland, a dispatch from Holsteinborg said today.

They flew from Godthaab north to Holsteinborg last week after making the former place a base for a series of short flights over the inland ice.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Alfred Smith, 72, real estate operator, surrendered to police yesterday after his stepdaughter, Lucille Smith, 35, had been shot to death and his wife, Mrs. Louise Lang Smith, 53, probably fatally wounded.

Smith told police he became angry when they protested a property award he had made to his son and the shooting followed.

Clara Bow's Backer Dies in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Sam Rork, 63, film director who brought Clara Bow back to films in "Call Her Savage," died yesterday after a heart attack.

Rork, it was understood, spent his fortune on Miss Bow's comeback. He was credited with numerous other film successes and produced Will Rogers' last silent picture.

'Humph! Why the Fuss?' Says Champ Commuter

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Today was an anniversary in the life of Addison H. Day and how he hated it!

Not that he has found commuting for 64 years unpleasant. It's the fuss people make about it that makes him weary.

Every working day for 64 years Mr. Day, a spry and somewhat peppery banker, has traveled back and forth from his home in Chatham, N. J. Today he started his 65th year with what figures out to be something like his 19,329th trip.

The 81-year-old banker said:

The "humph" conveyed not too high an opinion of a world that finds 64 years of commuting an occasion for congratulations and pictures in the papers.

He added:

"I am a quiet man. I am a man of habit, and of conservative habit at that. Ever since I started to New York from my father's home in Chatham for my first day's work I have lived the life of a quiet, conservative man, who wished merely to do his work and raise his family. The very fact that I had done this was seized upon five years ago as a matter of public interest.

"Why, do you know—can you conceive—what happened to me this past year? I was asked, in the absence of the Mayor of Chatham, to throw out the first baseball for the opening game of the local league. The first baseball, indeed!"

When Day started communting the cars were lighted by kerosene lamps and the trip took an hour and a half, against 43 minutes now. Day commented, a bit acidly:

"I fail to find anything strange in that. Train service has naturally improved."

Seamen in Loin Cloths Don't Mind Heat at All

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Officers of the good ship Calumet cursed their luck. They had come from the sultry gold coast of Africa to Philadelphia—to find the temperature 99.

But those African seamen! Clad only in loin cloths, they squatted contentedly on the baking hot steel decks.

While the officers huddled under the shadow of the bridge, mopping their brows and telling how Equatorial seas are often cooler, the tribesmen chattered gleefully of the day when they would return to their home port and their wives. Each man has several.

Each wife tries to get more of her husband's salary than the others, explained a mate. Consequently a noisy collection of Kroo and Mendi women greet the calumet on its arrival.

The mate said:

"Sometimes there are free-for-all fights. The screaming and chatter well nigh deafen me. These men, however, take it all calmly.

"They wear trouseres, shirts and coats when they go home, to 'put on the dog,' but at sea and after they have been home for a while they go back to their loin cloths."

GANDHI ARREST BALKS MARCH IN CAMPAIGN

AHMEDABAD, India, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The Mahatma Gandhi, his wife, and 33 followers were arrested by civil authorities today at the outset of their new disobedience campaign for Indian independence but their early release on parole was considered likely.

Plans to march to the village of Ras in Kaira district, where they hoped to gain converts for the individual movement, were thwarted when Gandhi was arrested at the home of a wealthy mill owner, Seth Ranchooddass.

The arrests were made under provisions of ordinary law, whereby the captives became state prisoners to be detained at the government's pleasure. If a parole is broken, they must stand an open trial.

SENTENCE POSIBLE

The followers were sleeping at the Ashram, or college of devotees, at Sabarmati, and were taken to the Sabarmati jail, where the leader also was incarcerated.

(A dispatch from Poona said the frail mahatma will be brought back to the Yeroda jail in Poona and later released under an order restraining him from leaving the district and forbidding any activity in connection with the disobedience movement. Failure to observe the order will mean a public trial and a two-year prison sentence upon conviction.)

Only recently Gandhi announced he would disband the Ashram, which he called the most precious thing in his life, saying its 32 members, his wife, and secretary, Mahadev Desai, would march to Ras.

When the district magistrate and other officials approached the Ranchooddass bungalow in motor cars, a small crowd which had gathered expecting the arrests rushed inside, and Gandhi awoke.

FOREHEADS MARKED

He summoned his followers to prayer and was given 30 minutes to prepare to leave. Hymns were sung and Ranchooddass marked the foreheads of Gandhi, his wife and Desai with saffron in token of farewell.

Gandhi had visited the seminary during the night, and had affectionately said farewell to the disciples, among whom were Nila Cram Cook, an American, and Margaret Speigel, a young German doctor.

These latter two were not included among the prospective marchers and were not arrested.

BRITISH BOMB FAKIR'S TOWN

SIMLA, India, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—A squadron of British airplanes bombed Kotkai, a fortified frontier village of the Abjauri tribesmen, today because the khan of Kahr refused to surrender the "mad fakir" and his two companions, alleged enemies of the King of Afghanistan.

The planes returned safely to their base after bombing the town. The bombing was carried out after repeated warnings, and the tribesmen fled to the hills, from which vantage point they watched the spectacle of destruction.

Investigations are under way to determine whether another air raid will be necessary. The "mad fakir" and his companions apparently fled to the Afghanistan side of the frontier.

Flaming Meteor Falls in Arizona

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 1.—(INS.)—A flaming smoking meteor fragment crashed from the sky to the lawn of the Fred Sullivan home here, startling the neighborhood, Sullivan revealed today.

The fragment, colored dark brown and black, had the appearance of a fireball as it fell, Sullivan said. It will be turned over to the University of Arizona museum.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Unemployment relief grants to states passed the $100,000,000 mark today with announcement by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration of four grants totaling $2,563,909 to Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas and the District of Columbia.

She's 'Striking'

SYLVIA SIDNEY

SYLVIA BOLTS CHEVALIER FILM

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(AP.) Sylvia Sidney, film actress, has called her own little private strike on the studio sound stage.

She boarded a plane for New York last night, en route to Europe, while her employers, Paramount Studios, were filing with the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences a protest describing her as being guilty of "professional anarchy."

Her walkout, said Paramount, is going to cost $100,000 in hard money, and Maurice Chevalier, her co-star in a picture now in production, a lot of extra hard work in retaking scenes in which she appeared.

Paramount heralded Miss Sidney's departure as the first instance on record in Hollywood of an actress' walking out of a picture before its completion. Miss Sidney said she had to recuperate from a throat operation performed July 14.

Woman's Testimony Denied by Barton

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Mrs. Frances W. King completed her testimony yesterday at her trial on charges of attempting to extort $50,000 from Bruce Barton, publicist and advertising executive.

Barton, recalled to the stand, contradicted certain portions of Mrs. King's testimony concerning their acquaintance and acknowledged that he paid $25,000 in settlement of an alienation of affections suit brought by her husband.

Husband Kills Boss Of Estranged Wife

NORTON, Kan., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Wilfred Lund, 35, yesterday killed his estranged wife's employer, Frank McCune, about 55, officers said, wounded the latter's father, Bob McCune, 75, fired several ineffective shots at his wife and committed suicide.

The shooting occurred on the McCune farm.

LEWIS STONE JOINS MOVE TO END STRIKE

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Actors, writers and directors in Hollywood's film colony today moved to end quickly the prolonged argument between producers and technicians which sent thousands of men on strike July 24.

Through the agency of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences—which has feared the walkout may work irreparable harm to the great industry—hearings were started by a fact-finding committee to get at the nub of the controversy.

A veteran actor; Lewis Stone; a prominent director, Frank Lloyd, and a versatile writer, Carey Wilson, were named as members of the group which launched the investigation with approval of the strikers. Other members are Robert Fairbanks, for the producers, and Max Parker, for the technicians.

Stone, Lloyd and Wilson are affiliated with the Academy.

Formal acceptance of the Academy's offer to arbitrate was telegraphed its officials by heads of the five local unions involved in the walkout last night, but the producers withheld comment after a meeting at which the proposition was discussed.

Hollywood Cameraman, Loyal to Pals, Kills Self

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(Universal.)—Brooding over the strike in the film studios, Norman De Vol, 32, a cameraman, killed himself with a pistol bullet yesterday.

Without work for seven months, De Vol had received several offers of employment since 4,000 of the studio workers walked out, but he left a note saying:

"I couldn't go against the gang. I tried to do what was right."

Meanwhile the strike remained in deadlock, with the strikers and producers apparently waiting for the other to make the first move.

DEAD TOURIST'S PAL TO BE HELD

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Charles Manger, 21-year-old Stanford University student and member of the wealthy Manger hotel chain family, will be arraigned in a German court when the North German Lloyd liner Bremen docks at Bremerhaven on Thursday, for the accidental shooting of his friend, Karl Werner Heye, III., killed aboard the liner at sea yesterday.

If authorities permit, young Manger will then accompany the body of his 26-year-old traveling companion, adopted son of the late Karl Werner Heye, II., of Rochester, back to New York.

Friends of the young men at the Washington Square South House where both had apartments expressed the belief yesterday that young Heye was killed accidentally while the two were examining a revolver.

Woman Requests Pet's Doom In Will

MEDIA, Pa., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—A request that her Pekingese, "Nana," be put to death by poison and buried on the day her mistress died, was revealed yesterday in the will of Mrs. Caroline Calhoun, of St. David's.

The will directed that money from life insurance be used "to pay for my funeral and 'Nana's;'" also that "'Nana's' resting place be fixed just as 'Pona's' was with a case and grave vault."

"Pona" was another Pekingese which died before Mrs. Calhoun. Concerning her own burial, Mrs. Calhoun directed:

"Get me the cheapest casket you can."

GIRL CONFESSES 'KISS' KILLING

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The mysterious slaying July 13 of Nelson Voss, 25-year-old rural mail carrier, was believed to have been solved today with the announcement of State's Attorney M. L. Geers that Miss Stella Christoff, 17, had admitted shooting Voss. Geers quoted her as saying:

"He tried to kiss me, and I got mad and shot him."

Armed with a shotgun, she said, she and her younger sister, Sophia, 12, had gone squirrel hunting when Voss approached them.

Geers said she told him that when she shot Voss he was trying to persuade her sister to go home.

Unrelated Pair of Same Name Slain Together

DETROIT LAKES, Minn., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Two men of the same name, close friends but unrelated, were shot to death in the rumble seat of an automobile near here, authorities said yesterday.

The young men, both named Weino Kangas, had stopped with Eino Kangas, a brother of one, and Charles Weirima at the scene of an automobile accident.

Shortly after they started away, two shots were heard. Weirima and Eino Kangas said they looked back and noticed their companions had been hit. Authorities were at a loss for a motive to explain the shooting.

PARDON GIVEN GEORGIA SLAYER

ATLANTA, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Bill Creen, life-term murderer, who tried to kill Leo Frank, central figure in one of the most sensational cases in Georgia criminal history, is free.

Gov. Talmadge pardoned the aged and ill convict after he had spent 20 years of his life at the state prison farm at Milledgeville.

Creen cut Frank's throat a few days after the latter arrived at the farm from Atlanta and only the timely work of a physician saved Frank's life.

Frank was convicted and sentenced to hang for the murder of Mary Fagan, Atlanta stationery plant employe. His sentence was commuted by John M. Slaton, then governor.

About six weeks after Creen's attack and before the wound had completely healed, a mob stormed the prison, removed Frank, took him to Marietta, near Atlanta, and lynched him.

The board, authorized by President Roosevelt, will consist of five members, to function for 90 days. The 1,000 cases it will consider are already on file with the government and will be referred here.

The board will check claims of veterans who contend their disabilities were caused by service. Under the new regulations veterans must prove their ailments developed within a year after discharge. In the case of tuberculosis, two years is allowed.

POSITIVE indications of higher prices for FURS have already been announced in the industry's trade journals. "Raw furs soar to advances from 20 to 60 per cent," in recent trading. Anticipation of these price rises by Pittsburgh Fur Dealers caused their placing of large advance orders early in the season. Now they are in a position to protect the public with Furs at pre-inflation price levels during their August Sales!

Julius Tannen 'Found' at Last By Radio

By AIRCASTER

It is with a 30-piece orchestra this time that Phil Spitalny stages a somewhat spectacular comeback to the air on August 18. This time Philip switches from his old stamping grounds at NBC to become a weekly figure at CBS, where he will glorify a brand of suds in song and melody as only Monsieur Spitalny can with his extraordinary arrangements.

Mr. Tannen

And with him comes a gent who should have brought his suavity to the microphone lanes long, long ago—a swell old trouper and wit, Julius Tannen, who, if given his own way, should make a bit of history concerning radio humor.

Shows for Sale

Recommended to producers interested in making up new shows:

By all means that bizarre and surpassing trio of mountaineers, the Beverly Hill Billies, who made themselves a four-year box office bet on the West Coast—being featured on one occasion over a new film's opening. Pappy Murray and his lads, Ezra and Zeke, were recently heard with Rudy Vallee. It's one of those acts that can't go wrong.

Vivian Janis, a lass slated for the new "Follies," but who can put real characterization in song, and who, before the week is over, probably will be signed by the NBC.

The Don Hall Trio, which fits nicely into any sort of big program, or which makes up a show of its own.

More Noise on Air?

What does radio need? So many people ask this question you'd think they were serious.

Buddy Wagner, the young maestro, thinks radio needs more satisfactory sound effects, such as: Your auto brakes working, the noise of a cigaret lighter that lights, your change clinking on a counter and your mother-in-law keeping quiet.

Anthony Frome seriously opines that radio needs more romantic voices owned by vocalists ugly and puny as sin, so that when sweethearts and wives of listeners rave over 'em, send for photos, and then get them, will appreciate hubby or sweetie all the more.

Premiere

Barbara Maurel comes to the WJAS waves tonight at 10:30 as the featured vocalist in a new twice-weekly series combining Ted Husing, the Hummingbirds and Leon Belasco's orchestra. On August 19 she'll sing with the Philadelphia Orchestra.

PINCHOT VAGUE ON ADDED TROOPS

HARRISBURG, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot said today that the sending of additional militia into the southwestern Pennsylvania coal strike area is a "conditional possibility."

The governor, scanning reports of fresh violence in the trouble zone, explained "no formal request" has been made for reinforcements to the 325 National Guardsmen sent into Fayette County Saturday.

PARLEY FAILS

Pinchot's planes for a "peace" conference with officials of the H. C. Frick Coke Company and representatives of the United Mine Workers of America collapsed today, but the Governor will meet with miners' leaders at 3 p. m.

The Governor's aides said it was "understood" that Frick company officials would have attended the conference if the "company union" plan had been scheduled for discussion. They declined to attend the parley otherwise, it was said.

The Governor said he had received word of increased violence in the southwestern regions.

The so-called Lansdale plan is to be set up in Washington County. This plan would mean that county and municipal authorities would withdraw in favor of state police as they did during the recent needlecraft strike disorders at Lansdale.

SILENT ON TROOPERS

Pinchot declined to amplify his statement on the possibility of new troops being sent into the Southwest, where 10 persons were shot and wounded and others affected by tear gas in early morning violence.

It was suggested that cavalry units would get the call if new forces were needed. The Governor parried:

"It's too far away to talk about that now."

Moses Spurns Call To Pinchot Parley

Officials of the United Mine workers of America were in Harrisburg today to confer with Gov. Pinchot after Thomas Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke Company refused to send representatives to a joint parley.

The Governor invited the union and company representatives to a conference today in an effort to effect "permanent peace." The Frick Company was the first affected by the strike in Fayette County.

P. T. Fagan, district president of the union, left for Harrisburg this morning. Philip Murray, international vice president of the U. M. W., planned to go from Washington to Harrisburg and meet Fagan there.

Asked if the Frick company would be represented, Moses replied:

"Not to my knowledge. I couldn't make it any briefer than that, could I?"

Gov. Pinchot, at his home in Milford, would not comment on Moses' refusal to attend.

STRIKE SPREADS TO MINES HERE

tary of the U. M. W., said the miners apparently were "kicking over the traces" in an effort to completely unionize the field.

50 PER CENT OUT

At the union headquarters, it was reported 50 per cent of the 1,400 employes at the Pittsburgh Coal Company's Montour Mine No. 10 at Library had quit after pickets patrolled the road leading to the property this morning.

There were no disorders reported. Between 300 and 400 strikers gathered at Montour mine No. 10 told men going to work that a strike was on, and advised them not to join.

The pickets said they were from Mollenauer mine No. 3 and the Horning and Coverdale mines of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company and the Knothole mine, an independent operation.

At the Pittsburgh Terminal offices, it was said their mines were closed contrary to union agreements. Five mines at Castle Shannon, Coverdale and Mollenauer, employing about 2,000 men, were affected. An official of the company said:

"We have been dealing with the United Mine Workers for years, and only last Friday we made a new agreement providing for a 10 per cent pay raise to go into effect today. We have not had any disagreement."

LEADERS ABSENT

P. T. Fagan, district president of the U. M. W., and Philip Murray, international vice president of the union, were in Harrisburg for a conference with Gov. Pinchot.

Secretary Hargest said he had heard Montour Mine No. 4 and all mines in the Canonsburg district were closed. He said these included the Muse mine of the National Mining Company, an H. C. Frick Coke Company subsidiary.

VALLEY NOT AFFECTED

The Allegheny Valley has not been affected, according to Hargest. In Armstrong County, however, it was reported miners met at Yatesboro, near Kittanning, and declared a strike at all mines of the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Company.

The Sheriff's office here had not been called on for men. Deputy Sheriff B. V. Coffey said:

"We will not send out deputies until an emergency arises, and in that event we will have plenty of men on hand. Only applicants with good reputations, who have resided in the county for a year or more will be considered."

6 PICKETS SHOT IN MINE BATTLE

breakers, ran the gauntlet of pickets leading into the back entrance of the H. C. Frick Coke Company's Filbert Mine. As the cars drove by the pickets yelled their derision. Shots rang out and the pickets scattered for cover.

Eleven shots in all were fired, according to the pickets, who said they retaliated with a barrage of stones. Several cars were struck, but no serious damage was reported. The fight lasted for almost half an hour. Later a car came out of the mine, according to the strikers, and from it came hurtling a tear gas bomb. The miners threw stones and several crashed through the windshield and the car skidded from the road, coming to a stop against the side of a mine building.

Deputy Patrick H. Ralston, 22, of Masontown, suffered a skull injury, and his companion, Michael Feick, Jr., 27, of Star Junction, also a deputy, was struck above the eye. They were taken to Brownsville Hospital.

STRIKER SHOT

At Edenborn, a short distance away, Pete Accica, 32, a striker, was shot when men in an automobile bearing a New Jersey license was reported to have fired on a group of pickets. The machine, one of two New Jersey cars to enter the mine about 2:30, was occupied by two men, according to the miners. Accica was lying in the grass at the side of the road. A bullet entered his left thigh.

At one of the entrances to Colonial No. 3 of the Frick company, two mine pickets were shot and a striker's automobile standing at the side of the road was riddled with bullets just before daybreak. The wounded men are Ben Brown, 45, and Louis Bodorsky, 38, both of Allison.

They were members of a group which stood in the road flagging automobiles. A coupe bearing a Pennsylvania license and occupied by two men stopped at a signal from the pickets and when some one in the crowd asked who they were, the reply came from the car:

"We're agents."

DEPUTIES FLAGGED

The miners said they gave them the word to pass and as they started away, one of the pickets yelled:

"Stop them, they're deputies from Smock."

The car sped down the road and half a dozen shots were fired back at the crowd. Several bullets struck an automobile in which two miners were sleeping along the side of the road and Brown and Bodorsky fell wounded.

The second clash occurred when, according to company officials, 300 pickets raided the bathhouse were 15 men from the night shift were changing clothes.

Six deputies, armed with tear gas guns and riot guns, swarmed to the workers' aid. Several shots were fired and four tear gas borbs were set off, but no one was reported hurt.

The miners called National Guard headquarters and three automobiles loaded with soldiers were rushed to the scene. Shortly before the guards arrived a group of the strikers ventured along a private railroad right of way leading into the plant and met with an attack on two sides from the company deputies.

A tear gas bomb was shot into the group, the projectile striking one of the men on the chest as it spouted fumes. Two men were affected by the gas. They were Walter Moore and Thomas Morgan. Both were taken to Brownsville Hospital.

3-MILE FRONT

Pickets swarmed to the mine by the hundreds and by 7 a. m. there was a line of men and women stretched more than three miles in front of the plant.

The pickets were not molested the guards devoting their attention to keeping the highway open for motor travel.

At the height of the demonstration, 15 miners who had worked on the night shift came out of the plant. State police forced the pickets back to allow the miners to cross the highway and the crowd yelled derisively.

While efforts were being put forward in Harrisburg yesterday for settlement of the strike, other clashes between pickets and strike-breakers occurred. The most serious disorder was at Colonial No. 3 mine of the Frick company.

Eleven men, including an assistant foreman of the Frick Company and a deputy sheriff, were arrested yesterday and warrants for the arrest of two others, one a deputy sheriff, were issued. The complaints were made by strikers.

Stephen Raushenbush, confidential investigator for Gov. Pinchot attending the coal conference of the Pennsylvania Security League in Pittsburgh today, upon hearing of fresh outbreaks, rushed here by automobile to make a special report to the Governor.

He planned to confer with Maj. Momeyer at National Guard headquarters before reporting to Pinchot. Whether he would recommend the sending of reinforcements to the National Guard troops Rousenbush would not say, but it was intimated in official sources that this would be done.

MINERS STRIKE IN JEFFERSON

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Western Pennsylvania's strike fever spread to Jefferson County today as 5,000 miners walked out on strike, stopping all work at 11 mines of two large producers.

The men yesterday demanded a checkweighman and collection of 50 cents per miner for dues to the United Mine Workers of America, the collection to be taken from the miners' pay by the company and paid over to the union.

Officials of the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Company and the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Company, the operators involved in the walkout, agreed to the checkweighman, but said they would have to delay theiranswer regarding the check off.

The mines involved were Adrian, Yatesboro, Helvetia, Iselin, Kent, No. 2, Lucerne, Ernest and Soldier of the R. & P. Company, and Commodore, Clymer and Rossiter of CBC.

TROOPS BATTLE MILK STRIKERS

BOONVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 1—(AP.)—Forty state troopers, hurling tear gas bombs and wielding riot sticks, today routed 400 belligerent strikers, who massing north of this village, sought to block Sheffield milk trucks.

The strikers had placed spiked planks across the road.

Five men were knocked unconscious by the troopers' clubs while three others were so seriuysly injured they were taken to a hospital.

The clash with the embattled farmers was witnessed by 800 persons, mostly sympathizing farmers The participating farmers were armed with axes, poles and clubs.

De Valera Welcomes Education Delegates

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—President Eamon De Valera welcomed the delegates of the World Education Federation Conference at a reception yesterday.

Paul Monroe, president of the conference, responding to the President's welcome, said the idea that education was aimed at creating a new social order was a dangerous theory—such a creation was the business of the state.

MILLINER CODE SUBMITTED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Divergent proposals for limiting hours and raising wages in the millinery business were laid before industrial recovery officials today as hearings opened on a proposed fair practice code.

The agreement taken up first, submitted by the National Millinery Council, called for a 40-hour week with leeway for peak periods, and for minimum pay of 35 cents an hour in New York city, 32½ cents in Chicago and 30 cents elsewhere.

The women's headware group is asking for one dollar an hour for operators and cutters and 60 cents for trimmers, with a 40-hour week.

Union labor, through the Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers' International, seeks a 35-hour week, $40 minimum wages for cutters and operators, $45 for blockers and $24 for trimmers.

Miners to Demand Union Recognition

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 1.—Miners representing 10 mines in Washington County at a meeting in Westland last night voted to demand recognition of the United Mine Workers of America. James Doughlan, of Midland, representing the union, was chairman.

Mines represented were Montour No. 4, Midland No. 3, Westland No. 1, Buffalo, Moon Run, Hendersonville, Enterprise, Muse National No. 3 and Richfield.

9,000 Miners Quit In Indiana County

INDIANA, Pa., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Nine thousand coal miners in Indiana County struck today after a dispute with companies over employment and payment of checkweighmen.

All the coal workings of the county are idle.

RELIEF WORKER TELLS HORROR OF BATTLE

Roy Brown, a striker, took us to his home nearby. I counted 17 bullet holes in the side of the house. Three slugs went through a window. We went upstairs.

His aged mother had been asleep in the front room. There in the wall alongside the bed were two bullet holes, two more penetrated the dresser and two more which passed through the window and struck the top of her 4-year-old grandson's crib a few feet away. Mrs. Brown had just left the room the child was still in the crib, screaming, when his father rushed upstairs thinking he had been hurt.

At Frank Wallner's home, No. 168, I saw five bullet holes in the wall, three upstairs and two downstairs.

BABY PERILED

Robert Hammers showed us two bullet holes through the living room window. Hammers' 2-year-old daughter, Lorna, was sitting in an overstuffed chair. She crouched in terror when the shooting started. One of the bullets passed over her head.

We talked with James Addriao and John Dulerich, both bearing wounds of battle. Addriao's skull was injured by one of the bullets; Dulerich suffered a wound across his throat.

Addriao told me:

"We were yelling to the strike-breakers going into work between a double line of company deputies to come on and join our line." I heard one of the deputies give the order to the others:

"Load."

"In a few seconds the man who ordered them to load yelled, 'Come on, give it to them.'"

Dulerich said he also heard the deputy order his men to "give it to them."

FIRE INTO CROWD

Both of them told me the shots sprayed the crowd from every side. On every hand I saw evidence of the merciless shooting. The grass at the side of the road was covered with blood. Another pool lay near the side of the road not far distant.

Some of the women told me their stories, their voices quivering with suppressed emotion. They live in constant fear.

Helen Besida, just 16 years old, told me she stood beside one of her neighbors into whose body the deputies poured a load of shot. She said:

"I don't know how I escaped. A friend of mine yelled to me to run across the road into the house and I did. As I looked back I saw my neighbor, John Matty, fall."

Matty was the most critically wounded.

There were no troops in Star Junction while we were there. Mr. Washington and I passed them on their way in as were traveling towards Uniontown, more than three hours after the trouble.

Mine Mule Aids Pickets, Kicks Deputy

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 1.—Even the mine mules appear to have joined the coke region strike. Deputy Sheriff Rock Cain, attacked by pickets at the Edenbarn Strip Mine, fled into a stable to escape a barrage of rocks.

A mule kicked him back into the stable yard, where he was struck on the head by a stone.

BEER TAX SUIT NAMES CAIN

A mandamus action seeking to collect $900 in beer license fees was filed today in Common Pleas Court by Alex Biddle, treasurer of Jefferson Township, against County Treasurer Robert S. Cain.

Biddle said that Cain refused to turn over the money, asserting that Jefferson Township is a second class township and that under the law the beverage tax from a second class township goes to the county.

Biddle claims that the township is in the first class rating. The suit will be heard August 8.

COMPANY TOWN MEN SLAVES--MUSMANNO

Company towns in coal mining districts should be "consigned to the limbo of things never again to be resurrected," Judge M. A. Musmanno today declared before a seminar on company towns in the Association for the Blind, Craig street. He urged that a section to the coal code be drafted eliminating the evils of the mining town, asserting:

"It is a throw-back to the feudal days. The company controlled mining town is a black patch in the pattern of our municipal scheme of government, an anomaly in our civilization."

Judge Musmanno joined his protest with that of miners, civic and social and religious representatives at the meeting which was sponsored by the Security League of Pennsylvania. Charges made against coal interests were that they buy light current from the Duquesne Light Company and resell it in the company towns at exhorbitant prices, making monthly light bills from $8 to $12 the common thing in small company houses.

MINER'S PROTEST

James Clark, a miner from Renton, declared the practice was illegal and without the sanction of the Public Service Commission. A thousand letters of protest, he averred, were sent by miners to Gov. John S. Fisher when he was in office at Harrisburg, without result.

Continuing his attack, Judge Musmanno said:

"We have now reached the point where something must be done about eradicating the so-called company town, where American citizens are denied the rights of free speech, public assemblage, freedom of association with others, freedom to carry on their lives as their own.

"The United States Coal Commisison investigating conditions in mining towns throughout the country reported that miners in company owned houses are not regarded as tenants, but as domestic servants in the household of their employer.

"The dictatorial powers exercised by the coal company in closed towns are the rappings of absolute monarchies, and yet the Declaration of Independence eliminated royalty over 150 years ago."

ABOLITION DEMANDED

Miss Elizabeth Wight, Security League representative from Philadelphia, announced she would demand that abolition of company towns be included in a coal code.

Arraignment of coal interests was voiced by Joseph O'Hara, a silver-haired miner from the Union Colleries Company, Renton, first to speak under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Security League. Stating reasons for the present strike waging in Western Pennsylvania, O'Hara said:

"It's not only in defense of our families and growing children, but it's a strike in defense of our country. We feel that the attitude of the coal operators and steel men and the Mellons and those dominating the Republican party now is one of trying to do all they can to embarrass that man in the White House. He is trying to stabilize the country. We miners believe Roosevelt is like Christ and Lincoln; he preaches the teachings of Christ and follows the precepts of Lincoln."

Girl Is to Blame If She Has A Sleepy Sweetheart

He's not a flagpole sitter—but he might as well be, for all the good he is to Diane!

For seven years now—but read it for yourself. There's one like this in the life of almost any girl. If this one were in your life, what would you do about him?

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I have been going steady with the same man for seven years. And today I am no nearer getting married than I was six years ago, when he asked me to marry him.

I've played square with him, and I'm sure that he doesn't see any other girl. He is very quiet, and doesn't talk much. He has no bad habits. But I like fun, and attention—and he will come to see me, read the paper, and then fall asleep!

Sometimes I get so mad and upset that I think I'll go crazy. I am not happy, the way things are going. I tell him to try to pay more attention to me. He does—for about one hour—and then asleep he goes. It seems as if the only time he doesn't sleep is when we go to an occasional dance or show.

I should think that if he really loved me he would at least try to be entertaining. I've given up everything for him, and he won't change. Soon he will be going away for a few weeks. If he would only leave me happy I would be true blue, but the way I feel now I don't care if I ever see him again. I am so darned discontented.

ARGUED WITH HIM

I really do love him. I must, or I wouldn't stand for so much. But I've got to do something to wake him up. What can I do? I've talked and argued and it doesn't do a bit of good.

When I met him I fell like a ton of brick and he knew it. I guess that's why he walks all over me. He is only 27, but he acts lots older. I am 23. Even our friends think he acts funny. On the other hand, he has proved in more ways than one that he loves me. I guess it is just his nature to take me for granted. We are just drifting. I'd like to marry the first man who comes along, to get away from everything.

Please tell me what to do to make him wake up. DIANE.

Is it "just his nature to take you for granted?"

Perhaps. Like many another girl, you may be trying to change a dull drifter into a dream hero, and finding the task impossible. If so, don't be angry at him and sorry for yourself. We are as we are—and he has as much right to his nature as you have to yours.

However, you admit he has normal interests — likes dances and shows. Then why does he go into a coma when he's alone with Diane?

TOO SURE OF HER

Because Diane lets him!

Diane "fell for him" and let him know it. Diane was so glad to "get her man" that she permitted that man to do exactly as he pleased—coddled and flattered him, tucked a pillow under his head, and sat smiling while he snoozed.

All of which was thrilling—for a while. But seven years of snoozing is too much, and now you wonder what you can do? Do what you should have done in the first place!

Put a price on your companionship.

If you wish others to respect you, respect yourself. If you wish to be desirable, keep yourself rare. Bluntly, sister, your man is literally "going to sleep on the job" because he is too sure of you. Why should he disturb his solid comfort by marrying you when he can continue to enjoy it without responsibility or effort on his part?

Then, what's your cue? Wake up, yourself. Wake up and get going—and make him follow you. If he cares for you, he will.

And if he doesn't? If he just goes on snoozing?

Why, then, if you must have something like that around, I'd advise you to buy yourself a nice, well-preserved mummy. The upkeep's a lot cheaper, and they're just as ornamental as a sleepy sweetheart.

Politeness in the Home Is Subject of Fay King's Story

HOW GOOD HUMORED AND SMILING YOU ARE TO MAKE A FAVORABLE IMPRESSION POLITENESS IS OF THE GREATEST IMPORTANCE FOR HARMONY IN THE HOME
HOW MANY TIMES AT THE OFFICE YOU FEEL LIKE GIVING THE BOSS "A PIECE OF YOUR MIND" BUT YOU CONTROL YOUR TEMPER
FAY KING

By FAY KING

If we treated strangers half as rudely as we often treat our own we would not last long anywhere.

Yet our own should mean more to us than any outsiders. We should be just twice as considerate of hurting their feelings, interrupting ther conversations, or finding fault with them.

Many times we may feel like telling the boss or someone else at the office exactly what we think of something stupid or unfair they have done, but how well we control that impulse.

But at home we blurt out any thoughtless stinging word that comes to mind. We won't listen or speak in proper turn. We won't bother to polish blunt criticism with considerate tact.

Politeness would solve many of the problems in the home.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Sees Success for Her Plan for Wedding

Mary's question caromed around the room, while I held my breath for fear that Noel's diplomacy would fail in his answer to her fiery demand.

"Of course I thought of it myself," he stormed, with a manner calculated to convince even so skeptical a girl as his lovely fiancee. "I thought of it the second you said my father wanted you to go to Paris."

Mary threw back her head and laughed.

"You ought to be a good poker player," she said. "The masterly way you concealed that though was like nobody's business. You were congratulating and God-speeding me all over the lot."

Her face was tipped back from his, her lovely, mutinous mouth mocking him. Forgotten by both of them, and held to my couch by my twisted ankle, I felt like the occupant of a box seat at a play, and wondered if Noel would lose his inhibited shyness and answer her in the only possible way.

He did. I thrilled, as I might to a third act climax, when with a hoarse little exclamation he pulled her face up to his before she could dodge, and kissed her so thoroughly that she had neither breath nor speech. And after the first fraction of a second's resistance, I do not think they missed either speech or breath.

ASKED TO STAY

I gave an irrepressible little laugh.

"I think, Mary, that you'd better haul down your red flag of battle and run up the white one of surrender. If I ever saw a determined man—one whom it will be dangerous to cross—its the one now holding you. Be warned, my dear!

"And don't mind me! I tried to get away once, and neither of you knew that I was here. If you'll help me into my bedroom you may have this room as a battle ground. Only, Mary, take my advice and don't battle. This young man is in deadly earnest."

"Oh, Auntie Madge: I'm so sorry!" she said contritely, and Noel echoed her apology. "But you're not going anywhere else. If you can stand what we have already pulled — her eyes twinkled at me—you will probably be able to sit through the rest. I just want to ask Noel a few questions for the good of his soul."

"I don't care how many questions you ask me, if you first promise to marry me," he said, and I hardly knew Noel's usually musical and gentle voice. There was a distinctly raucous note in it.

But Mary took a few dancing steps away from him, "I promised you that ages ago, darling," she said airily, and with feminine intuition I saw that there was some admission, she still wanted from him, and that she did not intend to yield utterly to him until she had it.

"I'd like to hear those questions, Noel," I said, in a tone that took all responsibility from Mary and, as nothing else could, prevented the courteous lad from doing anything save listen.

NOEL QUESTIONED

"There are not many of them," Mary said, "I believe you, of course, when you say Mrs. Underwood wasn't responsible for your springing this rush marriage proposition; but you can't make me believe she didn't snake you into her apartment when you left here, and spill something that got you all hot and bothered."

Noel hesitated, and I guessed that it was no conscientious scruple between truth and falsehood that was holding his tongue. He was simply determining the expediency of telling Mary about Lillian's counsel. At last he threw up his head defiantly.

"Yes, she did ask me to come into her apartment," he said, "but she didn't say a word about marriage. She just wanted to show me something in the morning paper that she thought I ought to know."

Mary's eyes sparkled with mischief, and something more evasive.

"And what was the nice little piece in the paper, darling?" she queried mockingly. "It must have been something pretty fierce to make you dash in here with this bold Lochinvar stuff!"

Noel took a quick step toward her and seized her arms in a clasp that was almost savage. This time I made no restraining move, said no precautionary word. He was at the end of his patience, and I guessed that Mary knew it as well as I did.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

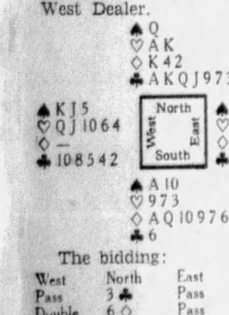
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Four Useless Aces

Once upon a time, in the early history of cards and card games, the Ace, or one-spot, was the lowest of the low. The "dirty deuce" and "humble trey" both outranked the Ace. The highest position in the hierarchy of cards at that time was accorded to the King. Perhaps some writer some day will tell the story of the revolution in the card world which brought about the promotion of the Ace to the position of command.

In Contract Bridge—particularly in Slam bidding—Aces are extremely vital because they assure control of the first round of the suit. I am quite sure that you will agree with me that a hand in which a player finds it possible to discard all four Aces and yet take all 13 tricks is out of the ordinary. The setting of the game was no less unusual.

The hand was dealt on a blanket in a "hobo jungle" in Butte, Mont. Mr. J. Francis Ficken, of Westwood, Cal., the player who discarded the Aces, at South. His partner was a book reviewer, a graduate of the University of California. A Mexican had the West position. The identity of the East player was unknown to Mr. Ficken. At the time the hand was dealt, East and West had a part-score, but neither side was vulnerable. West Dealer.



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	3 ◇
Double	6 ◇	Pass	7 NT
Double	Redouble	Pass	Pass
Pass

The Opening lead by the Mexican player was the Queen of hearts, and as he laid down his card, he turned to Mr. Ficken and remarked:

"Do you think you will make it?"

"Not only will I make it," replied Mr. Ficken boastfully, "but I will discard all the Aces and still make it."

The Mexican expressed his disbelief, and as a result a small wager was made. The first trick was won with the heart King; then five diamonds, not including the Ace, were cashed. The play went as follows:

Trick	West	North	East	South
1	♡ Q	♡ K	♡ 2	♡ 3
2	♡ 4	◇ K	◇ 5	◇ 3
3	♡ 6	◇ 4	◇ 8	◇ 10
4	♡ 10	◇ 2	◇ J	◇ Q
5	♠ 5	♡ A	♠ 2	◇ 9
6	♠ J	♣ A	♠ 3	◇ 7

At this time, when the players had witnessed the discard of two of the four Aces, the following situation had developed:

The squeeze had begun to operate.

Where Knot Should Be

If the knot is placed on the right side of the material under the button the thread is less likely to become loose and the buttons to come off.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Letter of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been absent from my club meetings all winter and spring on account of illness. The club was very nice to me and they sent me many beautiful flowers.

I will be able to attend the next club meeting and I want to show my appreciation, but I am at a loss as to what I should say. Please help me out. M.

I suggest that, before the meeting, you write a note to the secretary, leaving it to her judgment as to whether she read the note at the meeting, or tell the members the general content of your note. The note might be:

Dear Mrs. Alexander:

I am very happy to tell you that I am now so well that I am planning to attend the next meeting of the —— Club. You and the other club members have all been so kind and thoughtful to me during my illness, that I wish you would tell them, at the meeting, how deeply appreciative I am of their many, many goodnesses to me.

The club's friendliness and generosity are precious to me, and I am looking forward with deep pleasure to seeing you all, and to thanking you personally. Will you please be so kind as to either read this letter at the meeting, or tell the members of my appreciation and gratitude? Thank you so much, if you will.

OIL MILLIONAIRE FREED BY GANG

for a wildly jubilant family, he went to bed—"in good health, but very tired," said his spokesmen.

However, awakening hours later, Urshel was more talkative. Speaking of his captors, he said:

"We got along fine." They told me, 'we don't want to make this any more difficult than we have to. If you fight, we will have to mistreat you. If you don't, we will get along.'

"They gave me cigars, but they were not my brand."

After a pause, he added:

"I once had a bottle of soda pop."

He declared his eyes were kept taped during his nine days' captivity and he did not know where he was taken by the swarthy machine gun snatchers.

Urschel would not discuss the ransom, but Arthur Seeligson, friend of the Urschel family and chief intermediary, said definitely a payment had been made. Questioned about the ransom, Urschel said firmly:

"That is a family affair."

Seeligson refused to reveal the amount or details of the negotiations, saying simply:

EYES BLOODSHOT

Urschel seemed in good health, although his eyes were bloodshot and he looked tired as he arose from several hours' sleep and appeared on the sunporch of his mansion, the spot where the kidnapers seized him as he was enjoying a quiet bridge game with Mrs. Urschel and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Jarrett, July 22.

The oil man reached home after calling a taxicab from a barbecue stand near the point of his release.

Mrs. Urschel, worn after nine days of anxiety over her husband's safety, sat with him as he talked with reporters. Also present were his son, Charles, Jr., 17, his arms clasped about his father, and Mrs. Urschel's son, Tom Slick, Jr., 16.

U. S. TAKES UP TRAIL

Acting swiftly, 10 operatives of the federal government and every available police investigator swung back into the manhunt as soon as word of Urschel's release reached them. For a week they had shunned the house in deference to Mrs. Urschel's plea that nothing be done to delay the kidnapers' demand.

As for the nine days in which brown-eyed Berenice Urschel, widow of the "king of wildcatters," Tom B. Slick, had worked with friends and kinsmen to bring about her second husband's return, there was no news at all. Day after day, the same word had come from the big brick house:

"We know nothing. We have heard nothing at all."

That was the story until this morning. A half hour or so after Urschel came back, a reporter reached for a jangling telephone to hear from Seeligson:

"Mr. Urschel is home."

BARS WAY TO HOME

Bombarded by questions, the spokesman, co-trustee with Mr. and Mrs. Urschel of the $23,000,000 slick estate, barred the way to the millionaire himself, who went immediately to bed and refused access to Mrs. Urschel.

Meanwhile, W. R. Jarrett, kidnaped from the Urschel sunporch by the same two gunmen who seized the master of the house, declared, for the first time:

"They threatened to come back and get my scalp if I told where I was let out or which way they went, and I promised on my honor to keep quiet. But I guess it will be all right to talk about it now."

After he was released about 12 miles northeast of Oklahoma City, he said the kidnapers apparently changed their minds and tried to retake him as he walked toward main highways looking for a ride. They failed, however, to find him.

He recounted how the two "foreign looking" men burst into the porch where the Urschels and Jarretts were playing bridge and hustled their two victims away, prodding them with machine guns and pistols.

RACKET DRIVE SNARES FOUR

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—State's Attorney Thomas Courtney today announced the arrest of four men indicted with Aaron Sapiro, prominent New York attorney, and 23 others, including Al Capone, on charges of participating in a huge racketeering conspiracy.

The four were arrested in a raid on a hotel at Brown's Lake, Wis., and were taken to Racine to await removal to Chicago. State's Attorney's police and Racine County deputies participated in the raid.

Those seized are James Gorman, president of the Retail Dyers and Cleaners Union; Charles Goldstein, business agent of that union; Al Boris, president of the Cleaners and Dyers Helpers Union, and Ben Abrams, business agent of the latter union.

Others named in the blanket indictment charging racketeering were Murray Humphries, No. 1 public enemy and successor to Al Capone; Alderman Oscar Nelson and Dr. Benjamin Squires, University of Chicago lecturer.

Urges Law Barring Ransom Payments

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Gov. Lehman last night asked the special Legislative session to speedily tighten the kidnaping laws. He proposed the death penalty in some cases and 20 years to life in others. The penalty now is 10 to 50 years. Mr. Lehman also suggested that agreement to pay a ransom or enter into negotiations and refusal to divulge information of kidnaping be classed as felonies.

Urschel Tells His Story Of Life With Kidnapers

Sleuth Bars Home To Freed Oil Man On Return

By CHARLES F. URSCHEL

Millionaire Oil Magnate, Kidnaped and Released After Ransom Had Been Paid. (As Told to International News Service.)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 1.—The best way to describe how I felt and must have looked upon my return home today after my kidnap captivity is to tell you that the federal man stationed at the door of my home this morning didn't recognize me and refused to let me in.

I don't blame him for not knowing me as I was looking pretty haggard and seedy I guess.

It was a terrible experience and one I would not want to go through again. I was held only nine days, but it seemed to me to have been a month. I completely lost track of time. It seemed to me that there was no hope of escape or release. At times I felt my captors might grow as tired as I was of waiting and do away with the evidence by killing me.

STOOD IN SHADOWS

I do not know whether or not I could identify them. When they first burst into my home Saturday night a week ago while my wife and I were playing bridge with Mr. and Mrs. Jarrett, they stood in the shadows.

After they put Walter Jarrett, whom they had seized with me, out of the car, they blindfolded and gagged me with tape. I do not know where I was taken, but we drove without stopping for 14 hours on the way to the hideout and about 12 hours on the way back.

I could tell by the motion of the car that the trip was almost entirely over dirt roads.

It seemed colder where we went.

BACKWOODS SHANTY

Last Wednesday when I wrote a letter home at the kidnapers' order, telling my family that my life was in danger and requesting a ransom payment, I got a peep at the place where I was being held. It looked like a three-room backwoods shanty. The two men who seized me stayed with me almost constantly, but I got the impression there were other guards and that the men holding me were working for parties higher up.

CHICAGO POLICE KILL GUNMAN

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Eddie Mack, once the notorious bandit pal of Willie Doody, slain killer and desperado, shot it out once too many times with the police early today.

Attempting to escape the scene of a holdup, Mack was sent sprawling to the street with six police bullets in his body when he refused to obey a command to halt.

A companion of the slain bandit dashed back into a tavern brandishing a pistol and escaped through a rear door. Mack and his pal had invaded the Gra-man Tavern on the West Side, menaced a dozen customers and forced the proprietor, Samuel Guarina, to surrender $20.

Kidnapers Threaten Wealthy Publisher

HACKENSACK, N. J., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—A letter divulging an alleged plot to kidnap him has been received by John Borg, publisher of the Bergen Record.

The letter, received Sunday, was turned over to police. Borg, who retired from Wall Street where he amassed a fortune to become a newspaper publisher, is being closely guarded.

U. S. Denies Banker Parole in Fraud

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Application of Charles D. Waggoner, Telluride (Col.) banker, for parole from his 10-year sentence in the federal penitentiary for defrauding New York banks, has been denied by the Federal Parole Board.

O'CONNELL'S GO-BETWEENS IN TRAP

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The trap to catch the kidnapers of John J. O'Connel, Jr., was set more than two weeks before the youth was released when District Attorney John T. Delaney named a list of go-betweens suggested by the political family of the National Guard officer. Two of those on that list, Manney Strewl and Joe Curro, now are in custody.

Mr. Delaney in an interview today said he had advised the O'Connell family on July 14 to permit him to select a list from which the abductors of the boy would name a negotiator. Delaney picked out 12 men.

Strewl, who handled the $40,000 ransom money, and effected the release of O'Connell in New York City, is "helping the police," Delaney asserted. To a question, "will he be booked on a charge?" the prosecutor said:

"Yes, we'll eventually charge him."

The District Attorney sidestepped referring to Strewl as a prisoner, but he admitted he could not "walk out of our hands." Strewl is being held outside of Albany.

Delaney for the first time outlined his theory as to the origin of the crime. He believes, he said, a group in Albany conceived the plot and employed an out-of-town mob to carry it out. He said:

"It was a clever gang and a tough one. We were ready to shoot it out with them and expected to do so. If we had been tipped off on the payment of the ransom we'd have nabbed them, dead or alive."

Train Kills Man Asleep on Tracks

The identity of a man aged about 40, fatally injured early today when struck by a shifting engine of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad near South avenue, was being sought by police and morgue officials. The man is believed to have fallen asleep on the tracks.

Flying Scientist Seeks Lair of Dinosaur

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Dr. Barnum Brown, curator of fossil reptiles at the American Museum of Natural History, leaves today for the Black Hills to hunt dinosaurs by airplane. He said:

"I have found the airplane very helpful in spotting the places where dinosaurs are to be found. Of course I can't see the bones from the air, but I can tell to a certainty that I'm over the beds."

The resting places of the prehistoric monsters are distinct in their coloring because of later disturbances of the earth's crust, Dr. Brown said.

GANG GUNS KILL CAPONE RIVAL

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Tony Marino, hailed as successor to Al Capone as head of the West Suburbs Alcohol Syndicate left behind by the king of gangsters, was shot down and killed today in Cicero.

A fusillade of shotgun and pistol bullets poured out of a small sedan car by three occupants spelled the end for the racketeer.

George Jessel went to the radio studios and tried to get an interview with an executive. Although he couldn't get in (never heard of him) a dozen autograph hunters nailed Jessel for his Hancock. (Jessel can't even get a test in H'wood. He wonders why.)

So many ex-stars are playing bits here in Hollywood. Stuart Holmes for instance, in a two-reeler. Laura La Plante was the lead. Hobart Bosworth is doing a bit in "Beggar's Holiday." Betty Blythe is doing bits for Fox. Herb Rawlinson did a bit in the East recently in a quickie.

They still argue about the many divorces in Hollywood, and why? Some claim there are as many in small towns or New York, but in Hollywood nearly everybody has a front page name, so it looks like more.

The most popular comeback in Hollywood is Jesse Lasky's because he shot square with everyone in the old days, too.

When Walter Wanger was at Paramount he tried to sign Edward G. Robinson and Durante. Schulberg is supposed to have said neither of them had a chance in pictures. (Now look at them!)

One company is soon to make a film with a blonde star, the movie being based on the career of another femme star. The latter's firm just started to even matters by starring her in a movie based on the other gal's.

Add pitiful things—the fading actresses, who still have money, who are courted by youths, who don't care about public opinion.

New Juliet's Happier Fate

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Mr. Seibel

With a near-full moon rising above the Allegheny, John Van Druten's all-of-a-sudden lovers in "There's Always Juliet" kissed copiously and consumed battalions of cocktails at the Willows last evening. It was a moist evening—not the heat, but the humidity—and one does not judge the lovers harshly for their thirst nor their ardent passion. Blame it on the moon and the thermometer, which made romance and perspiration the order of the evening.

The author of "Young Woodley" had a happy thought, if any, in presenting two young lovers who see each other and fall in love. It has been done—there's Juliet, who lived in Verona, not far from Oakmont. Lenora and Dwight find a copy of "Romeo and Juliet" suspiciously handy when they need it—so love-making is easy. As Harold Daniels was very gallant and human in the role of Dwight, who would blame Elizabeth Drake for doing her part, which she did with sweetness and restraint in some very difficult love scenes?

Difficult because idiotic, but good psychology—which only idiots and lovers can understand. Rarely have actors been called upon to carry scenes with less real action—in olden days the lovers talked blank verse, but now there's only the telephone and the cocktail shaker. Miss Drake and Mr. Daniels acquitted themselves to the perfect satisfaction of all idiots and lovers.

Then there was that mixture of dragon and guardian angel, the maid impersonated by Madeleine Skelly Foust. And there was the brief emergence and swift eclipse of the unlucky Alexander Kann as the nearly happy lover. Both did admirably in their corners of the predestined romance in which they were only foils and auxiliaries.

Of course the dramatist, anxious to please the adolescent Juliets and Romeos at the Willows, has lied abominably about the last scene of the comedy. Dwight could not stay over and Lenora was ready for adventure. So she dosed Peter, impersonated by Alexander Kann, with more cocktails—and there was that same volume of "Romeo and Juliet" with the place marked—and the Moon of the Willows winked at the same kissing game all over, for Juliet was there and another Romeo would do as well. Which is cynical, Schopenhauerish and would be altogether detrimental to the box-office. And it would be a shame to interfere with the box-office, for this is the smoothest thing yet done and seen at the Willows, and much to the credit of the foursome and the direction of Chester B. Story. The Moon of the Willows won out over the thermometer.

Alice Brady Moves In

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—Judging by the picture plans for her, Broadway has lost Alice Brady for keeps. She not only is scheduled to do "The Vinegar Tree" after "Stage Mother," but Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has just bought "It Happened One Day" for a future Brady vehicle.

This novel, by Marjorie Bartholomew Paradis, tells the series of crises that face the members of a New York family between the hours of 8 and 5 of a single day.

Miss Brady's part is that of the mother of two girls and a boy. The father of the story, they'll tell you, simply cries to be played by Lionel Barrymore.

Meanwhile, Alice has given up her apartment and rented the proverbial house in Beverly Hills. There she lives quietly — if a household with four dogs can be considered quiet. One almost never sees her in filmland's favorite haunts.

They were about half way through when one of the harmless inmates approached the superintendent who was guiding the party. He tapped the official on the shoulder.

"You're the crazy one," he said. "You've got keys to get out of here and still you stay."

His success in the decorating business is not the only reason why Bill Haines is making no more pictures. Most people don't know that Bill still draws a weekly pay check from Metro-Goldwin-Mayer—and will until September.

All you hear is vacation plans. Nancy Carroll has sailed for Honolulu. Jobyna Ralston and Dick Arlen are plotting a trip to Europe when he finishes a couple more pictures. Incidentally, Dick's troubles with Paramount are all straightened out. He has signed his new contract. It calls for only five pictures a year.

Constance Talmadge is giving a "kiddy" party for Carmen Pantages Considine. The Considines are expecting an addition to the family in November, you know . . . Dick Powell still isn't strong enough to stay up late, but he and Mary Brian were having dinner at the Brown Derby the other evening.

Fulton Ready To Reopen

The Fulton Theater, closed several weeks, will reopen Thursday, the initial attraction of its new season to be "Double Harness," in which the featured roles are portrayed by Ann Harding and William Powell. It is a story of how a woman captures a man who thinks he is "not the marrying kind."

* * *

The feature of the screen bill opening tomorrow in the Enright will be "Baby Face," in which Barbara Stanwyck vamps her way until she is the wife of the head of a big institution.

* * *

George Arliss is the star of "Voltaire," latest picture by this popular artist. It will be seen Friday on the Stanley screen. Doris Kenyon has the leading feminine role in a dramatic tale of intrigue and folly that also has romantic and comedy angles.

* * *

"Another Language," co-starring Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery, will be the Penn screen feature beginning Friday. Based on the recent stage hit of the same title, it depicts the amusing and dramatic sides of the lives of members of just one family.

* * *

Zasu Pitts and Slim Summerville are co-starred in "Her First Mate," comedy that will be the feature of the screen bill opening Friday in the Warner. In it Slim wants to be a skipper on the briny deep and Zasu fixes it so that he gets a ferryboat.

* * *

The double feature bill opening Friday in the Sheridan Square includes Mae West in her great screen success, "She Done Him Wrong," an epic of the old Bowery, and Reginald Owen and Junie Clyde in a Sherlock Holmes tale, "A Study in Scarlet."

Football Tale Bought For Photoplay

Picture rights to Lucian Cary's newest story, "Saturday's Millions," scheduled for serial publication in September, have been acquired by Universal and the tale will serve as that company's annual football picture, following up the two preceeding football dramas, "The Spirit of Notre Dame" and "The All American." It will go into production tomorrow and will be released in October.

Pretty Boy.

THE GIRL yawned as she slipped into her kimono. Nine hours sleep and she was still tired. She glanced at herself in the mirror, and smiled approvingly. She looked as well in the morning, she told herself, as most women did at night.

Humming softly she moved into the kitchen of the small apartment and squeezed the juice of two oranges into a glass. To this she added a piece of ice and the juice of half a lemon. Then, still humming, she picked the Morning Tabloid from under the door and seated herself contentedly by the window. She spread the paper out before her.

Suddenly, her eyes opened wide. She sat erect with a jerk. The headline was responsible.

"Pretty Boy Jones Escapes," it screamed. "Thought Hiding in New York!"

Yes, there could be no doubt about it. There was his picture on the front page; the very picture he always complained about because it didn't do him justice. The girl turned the page, and read the story eagerly.

Pretty Boy Jones, toughest of gunmen, with the smile of an innocent child, had escaped from the prison to which he had been sent for 20 years only two years before. Complaining of chronic indigestion, he had been placed in the hospital wing. He had watched his opportunity, hit a doctor over the head with a chair, overpowered a guard—and walked from the prison without much difficulty.

There was more about the man. Plenty more. It told of the numerous jobs he had pulled and it dwelled at length about the fact that the police figured him as the most dangerous criminal in America. And last but not least, the story described in detail the vanity of the man—and how he had often boasted that he was one of America's best dressed men.

The girl tossed the paper aside and bit her lip nervously. She had good reason to be nervous.

For she was Pretty Boy's sweetheart, and this was Pretty Boy's flat. His suits—at least a dozen of them—hung carefully in the bedroom closet. And there must have been 30 shirts and ties in that heavy valise in the corner.

True, the girl had never expected that they would be used again. After all, when a man gets 20 years, his clothes are liable to be a trifle out of date by the time he gets out.

But the girl had kept them because the man had asked her to. She had been permitted to see him only four months before, and he had cautioned her about them.

"Mazie," he had advised, "you keep them clothes of mine like I was goin' to step in 'em any day. Keep 'em pressed and cleaned. Because you never know, baby, when I'll be steppin' in on you. They ain't gonna keep me here, honey. Just you wait and see."

And he had made good his boast. He was out now. Free. But what good would those clothes be to him anyhow? Surely he wouldn't be crazy enough to come to this apartment. The police knew it—and her—too well. No, Pretty Boy wouldn't even dare phone.

She knew that he would get in touch with her, but it wouldn't happen right away. She'd be walking along the street some day, and a note would be slipped into her hand. There'd be a telephone number on it and——

The girl stifled a scream. There was a tapping on the apartment door—a light tapping. She rushed over and flung it open. A figure stepped in, closed the door cautiously and caught her in his arms.

"Pretty Boy!" Mazie kissed him fervently. She kissed his lips. She kissed his eyes. Then she stepped back.

"It's wonderful to see you, Frank," she cried. "I'm all shaky inside. But, honey, why did you come here? You know the cops know this joint. You know they'll be outside spotting the place—if they're not there already."

The man drew her to him again.

"What's the dif, kid?" he muttered. "They ain't outside yet, and I'll be away before they are there. But even if they nailed me, they couldn't take this away from me. They ain't never gonna take this away from me no more."

For fully a minute they were locked in a passionate embrace. Then the man dropped his arms.

"Now, look, Mazie," he stated. "Here's the idea. I'm puttin' on a suit and clearin' out. You stick right here a coupla days and make out like you don't know nothin'. I'll give you a buzz as soon as I make a touch—and we'll probably wind up in South America while the cops are blamin' me for every kidnapin' between Jersey City and Denver.

"Pick out a nice blue suit, Mazie, while I grab myself a shirt. And maybe you think it ain't gonna feel swell to get a decent outfit on once again! You don't know what it means to me, kid. You don't know what it means."

In 20 minutes the man was ready. He was immaculate, and his boyish face radiated happiness. Instead of a desperate gunman, you would have sworn that this was a charming youth on his way to a choir rehearsal.

He peered from the window a moment. And he kissed the girl once again.

"I love you, sweets," he whispered. "I'll be seein' you soon. Be good."

The door closed behind him.

"And so," he concluded, "they nailed me again. I was gonna make a fight of it, but when I seen Johnny Broderick, I decided it won't be healthy. So I just let them take me."

His attorney shook his head.

"But, Jones," he asserted, "there's something that I fail to understand. You say that you kissed Mazie goodbye and that you made your getaway from the apartment without any trouble. Then you say they nailed you. I don't understand."

Pretty boy shrugged his shoulders.

"It's very simple," he replied. "I went back."

"You went back to the apartment!" he repeated incredulously. What for?"

The other man seemed a bit peeved.

"Because," he muttered, "I hadn't gone more than three or four blocks when I seen that I had picked out a brown shirt to go with my blue suit. A man like me can't walk around like that. So I went back to change it!" . . .

Officers were stoned and chased by angry crowds and auctioneers beaten when they tried to sell the confiscated property. The tithes are a "racket on the American scale," according to Lady Evelyn Balfour, niece of the late Lord Balfour.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Maytair —With— Patricia Pitt

The T. Stockton Gaineses have been in town—but are off again for several months in Mexico. While here during the past week, they were house guests of the Roberdeau Green Annans.

They were married, you probably recall, this past month at the home of the bride's parents, the Henry Blackwells, of Greenwood, Yardley, Pa. And Mrs. Gaines is the former Mrs. Ulric Dahlgreen, Jr.

Maria Leiper, daughter of the Junior Callender Irvine Leipers, of Sewickley, and David Millar, Jr., of Forrest Hill, Long Island, will be married Saturday noon at Ivy Hall, old home of the bride's grandmother near Philadelphia.

The ceremony will take place on the spacious terrace of the Leiper home with members of the two families and a few friends attending.

Maria, who will be given in marriage by her father, will have no attendants. After a motor trip following the ceremony, Mr. Millar and his bride will be at home in New York.

The bride's father and mother will leave tomorrow to attend the ceremony.

Woman Judge

And I hear that Elsa Horne Voss, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Horne, formerly of Pittsburgh, was the only woman judge at the Southampton Riding and Hunt Club's horse show Saturday at Southampton, L. I.

The woman judge won a prize, do you recall, this past winter at a show for paintings and sculptures of horses? She has a noted stable in her home at Old Westbury.

One of our fall brides-to-be, Patrice Kelly, the James B. Kellys' daughter, has been sharing honors with a prince at a series of entertainments given no farther away than Erie!

Elizabeth is just home from Erie, where she was the guest of the Charles H. Englishes, parents of her fiance, Richard O'Brien English.

And the Englishes had as their guests at the same time Prince Tchekotua and his aunt, Princess Emoukvari, of Gerogia, the same romantic section of Russia from which the Mdivani princes come.

The prince is a most charming young man we hear—tall and slender and likeable.

Patrice will marry Mr. English, by the way, September 12 in St. Paul's Cathedral at a solemn high nuptial mass at 11 o'clock. She hasn't named her bridal party yet.

Plans for the supper-dance the Ogontz School Association will give September 9 at the Longue Vue Country Club kept the society busy yesterday at a meeting in the home of Mrs. William A. Duckham, of the Royal Yorke Apartments.

The members came early, stayed for lunch and worked all afternoon. The supper-dance is a benefit for the Tuberculosis League Hospital.

PLANNING LATE SUMMER WARDROBE IS SIMPLE TASK

AUGUST IS the vacation month of the year. Mid-summer chic is more emphasized now than ever. But there's no need to get finicky about the proper clothes to take along with you. It's all so simple, really.

* * *

SHIRTS - AND - SHORTS for tennis, golf, bicycling and skating. One simple pique or linen for tennis, if you prefer a dress to shorts, and a light little cotton "brunch" coat to throw over your shoulders after a set. A yachting costume of heavy silk or cotton with sailor collar and nautical emphasis. An abbreviated swimsuit, practical but in some unusual weave and, of course, pair of smart gabardine slacks.

* * *

SO MUCH for active sports. But there's more to vacations than tennis, yachting, swimming. Take the races, summer theaters, garden parties, dancing—for which evening clothes come out of their tissues. Cool, phosphorus organdies, summer jewels, exquisitely coiffed hair, fresh flower corsages—here is a summer fashion picture at its loveliest!

* * *

BY ALL means go glamorous. (Although glamor may mean one thing to you and another to us.) An example of this was in one of the most unusual evening costumes seen this summer at the Atlantic Beach Club. It was a very gay gingham frock of black, red, green and white posed over a white pique undershirt. The contrast between the solid-looking cottons and the fascinating personality of the wearer was a lesson in fashion anyone might benefit by.

* * *

SO YOU see, since glamor is such a personal matter you may be at your best in Cinderella cottons, and we may look better in the "hot house" variety of fabrics. The kind you associate orchids with. The kind women twist, curl and lacquer their hair for. And for which they beg, borrow and buy diamond bracelets and pin sparkling little jeweled ornaments in their hair. And look divinely beautiful in.

* * *

SATINS and taffetas, for instance. And vaporous chiffons, and mousseline de soies. Take either of the gowns in the accompanying sketch, made on board a floating dance floor. One is exquisite white chiffon dotted in skipper blue coins. The other, white crepe with lace. Both, rich and new looking. The white crepe and lace, with a decidedly advanced air because of the Cambodian or Javanese dancer's upturned shoulders. And the high, round neckline in front, belying the nude back. And the slit in the tubular skirt.

THE OTHER model, with lacquered blue sash, is slim and pillar-like when still. In motion the skirt flutters gracefully about.

IF YOUR monotone summer evening dress has grown old to you, you might try knotting a man-sized kerchief, preferably coin dotted, around your throat. This is a current passion young ones have taken to.

MANY IN COUNTY ASPIRE TO BENCH

With all petitions filed in Harrisburg, the record today showed a large field in Allegheny County for Common Pleas Court, County Court and the newly-created Juvenile Court. Judge Thomas P. Trimble, of Orphans Court, has no opposition.

Eight candidates filed for Juvenile Court, most of them seeking nomination by both the Republican and Democratic parties. The complete list of judicial candidates follows:

COMMON PLEAS COURT

Alexander P. Lindsay, Pittsburgh, Republican and Democrat; Judge Ralph H. Smith, Pittsburgh, Republican, Democrat and Independent; Judge Harry H. Rowand, Oakmont, Republican and Democrat; Judge M. A. Musmanno, Stowe Township, Republican and Democrat; Raymond D. Evans, Pittsburgh, Republican and Democrat; Van A. Barrackman, Pittsburgh, Democrat; John F. Haggerty, Pittsburgh, Republican and Democrat; William H. Coleman, McKeesport, Republican; John F. Gloeckner, Pittsburgh, Democrat; John J. Kennedy, Pittsburgh, Democrat; Andrew G. Smith, Mt. Lebanon Township, Democrat; A. Marshall Thompson, McCandless Township, Democrat.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY COURT

William A. Walker, Avalon, Republican; Judge Frank A. Pickarski, Pittsburgh, Republican and Democrat; Judge Benjamin Lencher, Pittsburgh, Republican, Independent and Democrat; John J. McGrath, Pittsburgh, Republican and Democrat; John Paul Baker, Verona, Republican and Democrat; James L. O'Toole, Jr., Pittsburgh, Democrat; Austin L. Staley, Pittsburgh, Democrat; Clarence B. Nixon, Carnegie, Republican and Democrat.

JUVENILE COURT

William D. Grimes, Pittsburgh, Republican and Democrat; William George Negley, Pittsburgh, Republican; Theodore L. Moritz, Pittsburgh, Republican and Democrat; Burtt Harris, Pittsburgh, Republican, Prohibition and Democrat; Lois D. McBride, Pittsburgh, Republican and Democrat; Charles H. Lane, Jr., Pittsburgh, Republican; Joseph A. Burns, Pittsburgh, Republican and Democrat; Gustav L. Schramm, Mt. Lebanon, Republican and Democrat.

SEEK DEMOCRAT REGISTRATION

Excoriating Republican leadership in Pittsburgh, Allegheny County and Pennsylvania, the Roosevelt Independent Committee has adopted resolutions urging independent citizens to register and vote as Democrats in the coming primary and general election.

A demonstration of Democratic strength, the committee says, will lead to liberal distribution of Democratic patronage in this section. The demonstration will also be valuable, the committee says, in influencing the national administration to generous in allocations of federal funds for public improvements.

The Roosevelt Independent Committee has had difficulty with the regular Democratic organization, and intends to push in the courts its right to the name as well as the sole ownership of an "independent" label on the ballot. C. C. Hamilton is chairman of the committee.

A. A. Scholze Heads K. of C. Chapter

Albert A. Scholze, of the North Side, assumes office today as president of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Knights of Columbus. The chapter is composed of 18 affiliated councils with more than 7,000 members.

Janitor Rescues Boy From Perch Atop Elevator

A half dozen patrolmen sped to the Martinique Apartments, 4740 Baum boulevard, last night after being informed that a boy was caught in an elevator in the building.

They learned that Richard Jenkins, 11, who lives in the building, had climbed atop the car, which had lodged between floors. He was rescued by Thomas Hollsy, the janitor, who removed the door and pulled the boy out before police arrived.

BLAZE IN SHOP AT MAYVIEW

The top floor of the three-story tailor shop and storeroom of the City Home and Hospital at Mayview was damaged by fire of undetermined origin last night.

Two city fire companies hurried to the scene to aid Mayview and Bridgeville firemen in extinguishing the flames. Dr. James S. Hammers, superintendent, was unable to estimate the amount of damage.

STORM LEAVES FLORIDA

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The tropical disturbance had passed into the Gulf of Mexico today after bringing light gales to a strip of the lower Florida west coast.

Nowhere along the area traversed across the state from the east coast, where it entered Sunday afternoon, was any appreciable storm damage reported, except for scattering citrus losses, which remain unestimated.

Water stood in the streets at Palm Beach, and large areas of sparsely populated pine and grove lands in Martin and St. Lucie counties, on the east coast, were inundated.

Approximately 5,000 inhabitants of the lands around Lake Okeechobee, who evacuated to higher ground Sunday as a precautionary measure, returned to their homes.

Herron Foes Fail To Reach Harmony

By MARK SHIELDS

Certainly there is no immediate chance of a harmony candidate for the Republican mayoralty against Mayor John S. Herron. And all signs point to the improbability of harmony being achieved at any stage of the municipal primary.

Mr. Shields.

Those are the only possible conclusions from statements emanating from the conference yesterday between James F. Malone, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell and Councilman P. J. McArdle, who have announced as opponents of Mr. Herron. They met for more than an hour in the Keystone Club, discussed the situation in an atmosphere of apparent felicity—all have worked together in previous campaigns—and wound up exactly where they were.

The suggestion of Mr. Malone that all three might retire in favor of a new candidate never even reached the point where new names were discussed because Mr. McArdle and Mr. Mackrell declined to consider any set of circumstances that involved their elimination.

All three men said they were convinced that there was no need for further talk between them, and with the exception of Malone there was no intimation that harmony efforts would be prosecuted further.

* * *

All Bluntly Dash Hope of Compromise

The quotes of the three men were direct and unequivocal.

Mr. McArdle said:

"Nothing appeared to develop which would change the existing situation."

That, of course, meant three candidates.

Mr. Mackrell said:

"My statement of Sunday still stands."

That statement was to the effect that he would enter yesterday's conference as a definite candidate for Mayor.

Mr. Malone said:

"I fulfilled my pledge to endeavor to bring about a situation where we could have one anti-administration candidate, whether one of us or a brand-new man. There were no suggestions of new men, for we never got that far. It looks like there is no use in further conferences, as there are at least two irrevocable candidates."

Each man made his statement in the presence of the other two, and all coincided in the Malone statement that there was no necessity for further conferences.

* * *

Malone Perhaps Hinting Retirement

The attitude of Mr. Malone may be interpreted as an eventual intention to withdraw, but he has not done so, and has not said he would if Mr. McArdle and Mr. Mackrell are both candidates.

It is understood that Mr. Mackrell and Mr. McArdle, especially, each believed himself to be the strongest candidate to oppose Mayor Herron. In discussions in the conference each is reported to have spoken along this line, and could see no reason why he should give away under the situation as he conceived it. In that attitude agreement was hopeless.

The result is a complete confusion within anti-organization ranks, and nowhere is confusion greater than among independent voters, the unaligned public which votes without pressure and listens to campaign argument.

There are great groups within this category which wonder along what road lies real independent action, and the politically wise heretofore identified with the independent movement are at the moment divided.

* * *

Mayor Realizes Need for Action

So far only political headquarters publicly in action are those from which Mayor Herron's campaign is being operated. That indicates the Mayor realizes that, even with a divided opposition, he has a hard row to hoe, and must get busy.

McArdle billboards are appearing in the city, especially on the North Side. Many of the councilman's friends predict that he will do well in this section of the city, though his home is on the South Side.

Yesterday's conference was purely political, none of the figures usually prominent in independent movements accepting Mr. Malone's invitation to attend. Had there been anything approaching an agreement some of these independents might have appeared at a subsequent meeting.

So far this is more of an anti-administration than an independent campaign, the largest element of independence being represented in the independent attitude the Herron opponents adopt toward each other.

Four Daily Flights On Chicago Air Line

A new schedule calling for four daily flights between Pittsburgh and Chicago was announced by the Pennsylvania Air Lines. The flying time will be three hours and 50 minutes. Connections will be made with the United Air Lines in Cleveland.

Other flight times are: From San Francisco or Portland to Pittsburgh, 19 1-3 hours; Los Angeles or Seattle, 21 1-3; Salt Lake City, 14 1-3, and Omaha, 7 1-3 hours.

M'ARDLE GROUP SEEKS SLATE FOR COUNCIL

Witherow in Debate On Independent Candidates

Councilman P. J. McArdle, candidate for Mayor, and William P. Witherow, who withdrew his prospective candidacy in McArdle's favor, participated in a conference with Independents today regarding a council slate of five to run with McArdle.

Others joining in the discussions held in the Citizens League headquarters, Fitzsimmons Building, were Harry Bastow, president of the Allied Boards of Trade; Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, Mrs. J. O. Miller, chairman of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, and Miss Hannah Patterson, secretary of the Citizens League.

At the conclusion, no decision had been reached. Virtually all candidates, except the five sitting councilmen on Mayor John S. Herron's slate, were reported under consideration.

There is little doubt that John D. Houston, wholesale grocer, whose charges resulted in the city supplies expose, will be on the McArdle Council slate. Hugh McKnight, North Side hardware dealer, and Charles Wolff, North Side grocer and president of the Allegheny County Grocers' Association, may also be placed on the ticket.

Witherow, who left the city soon after his withdrawal from the mayoralty race, returned yesterday, saying he believed it his duty to aid the anti-Coyne-Herron forces in any way possible.

'FREE JESSIE,' DEFENSE PLEA

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Declaring the government has failed to prove its case as the criminal law specifies, Chief Defense Counsel rancis E. Rafter today asked Judge Frederick W. Fosdick to order a "not guilty" verdict in the trial of Mrs. Jessie B. Costello, accused of the poison death of her fire captain husband.

Rafter made his plea to "free Jessie" after District Attorney Hugh A. Cregg had rested the state's case.

Rafter said there "must be a moral certainty of guilt," according to Supreme Court decisions. He contended there is none in this case, although the state called 44 witnesses.

He declared:

"They have shown nothing but the dead body of William J. Costello, whose cause of death is unknown."

MOTORCYCLISTS DIE IN CRASHES

Grant V. Bridge, 25, of 3245 Beechwood boulevard, was injured fatally today when his motorcycle collided with a truck at William Penn highway and Graham boulevard, Wilkins Township.

Police Chief James Harris, of Wilkinsburg, held the alleged driver of the truck, Nathan Davidson, 37 Niagara street, for the Coroner. The truck, according to Harris, was crossing the highway when the accident occurred. Bridge died at the Columbia Hospital.

Arthur Robinson, Jr., 21, Tarentum, R. D. No. 2, was fatally injured when his motorcycle crashed head-on with an automobile in the Bull Creek road, near Tarentum last night, according to the Coroner's report.

MATE GRILLED IN WOMAN'S BLAST DEATH

Police Probe Affairs Of Mechanic; Bomb Theory Upheld

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 1.—Into the affairs of James C. Rubright, Harmony truck driver and mechanic, state police delved today to learn more of how his pretty young wife, Mrs. Demaris Sayre Rubright, of New Castle, was blown to bits in her automobile parked on a lonely road in Butler County.

Since his arrest in the South Side yesterday by a Zelienople constable and Pittsburgh detectives, Rubright has clung staunchly to his story that the explosion in which his estranged wife met her death was due to his removal of the gasoline tank from the rear of the car to a place near the motor.

STORY DISPUTED

Police dispute his story, and aver that an explosion that blew portions of both the automobile and Mrs. Rubright as far away as 400 feet, and shattered windows in the immediate vicinity, could be caused by nothing less than an explosive.

District Attorney Edgar Negley, of Butler County, joined the investigation last night and ordered the arrest of Katherine Schaeffer, of Harmony, with whom the Rubrights and William Rosner, of Harmony, were riding shortly before the explosion.

Rosner was arrested with Rubright, when the pair came to Pittsburgh in their truck to peddle dairy products. Rubright's arrest was his first knowledge of his wife's death, he told police. He viewed the head in a Butler mortuary last night, and identified it as that of his wife.

STORIES AGREE

The stories of Rosner and Rubright, with minor exceptions, agree, police said. According to the officers, Rosner, Miss Schaeffer and Rubright left Mrs. Rubright in Lancaster shortly before midnight Sunday night after a futile search for a place to buy beer.

In Lancaster, according to the story, Mrs. Rubright left in a coupe which her husband had purchased for her a week ago from a wrecking firm and which he had repaired. That was an hour and a half before the explosion occurred, police said.

Rubright insists he cannot explain why Mrs. Rubright was in the car, parked on a lonely road five and a half miles from where he left her.

LIVED APART

Divorced from his first wife several years ago, Rubright married the present Mrs. Rubright nearly three years ago. Her home was in Youngstown, N. Y. A story told by neighbors that Rubright introduced his wife to his friends as "Miss Demaris" was corroborated by Rosner.

They lived apart, Rubright told police, because it would be easier for her to obtain work that way. He said he paid the rent and the grocery bill. Mrs. Rubright obtained occasional work as a domestic in the neighborhood, police said.

DIVORCE TALKED OF

Neighbors also told police there was talk of a divorce for which Rubright had promised to pay, provided his wife would not ask for alimony.

What police could recover of the wrecked car they examined for evidence of a bomb. A wire, running the length of the frame, was shown to Rubright, but the mechanic replied:

"I don't know what it is."

Another theory advanced by state police is that Mrs. Rubright was dead before the explosion. The theory was strengthened by the story of Miss Nannie Meyers, whose home was damaged by the blast. Miss Meyers told police she heard the car pull up and the voice of a man just before the blast.

Crowds Pressing Into the U. S. Home Loan Offices

POLICE REGULATING THE CROWDS POURING INTO THE NEW U. S. HOME LOAN CORP. OFFICES, BENEDIUM TREES BUILDING

APPEAL FOR AID BY OWNERS HEARD

First Applicant Says Mortgagor Refuses to Accept U. S. Bonds

Hard pressed victims of the depression, hundreds strong, formed in line in Fourth avenue to make the first rush of business for the Pittsburgh branch of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, which opened in the Benedum-Trees Building today.

Orderly and patient, the first of the many eager applicants gathered in the lobby of the building as early as 6:30 a. m. By the 9 a. m. opening hour the line was half a bock long, several deep.

L. G. Lichliter, manager for Western Pennsylvania, and J. S. Baughman, manager for Allegheny County, with a staff of several assistants, greeted the home owners seeking relief from impending foreclosures and sheriff sales in the lobby of the first floor offices.

Men and women, young and middle-aged and old had flocked to the offices to appeal to their government for aid in saving their homes.

TROUBLE WITH BONDS

The first applicant was Robert L. Snedden, of 1809 Packer street, McKeesport. He had his difficulty, like so many of the throng—his mortgagor didn't want the Home Owners' bonds.

Snedden was promised every assistance of the corporation's staff here. The holder of his mortgage will be urged to accept the bonds.

The same scenes were taking place all over the country as scores of the corporation's offices were opened today. To applicants can be given as much as $2,000,000,000 in the bonds, bearing 4 per cent interest guaranteed by the federal government, maturing in 18 years and secured by the mortgage in return for which they are issued.

Relief for home owners up to 80 per cent of the present day value of their homes is offered by the corporation, provided they are in actual danger of losing their homes.

APPLICATION METHOD

Method of obtaining the loan, in the words of W. F. Stevenson, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, is this:

"There will be a general manager for the corporation established in each state, with sufficient employes to handle the business, whose location will be well known and applications to such manager should be made by mail or personal call for blanks to fill out, making applications for loans to take up mortgages in existence."

Jacob H. Mays is state manager with offices in Philadelphia. Baughman is his representative here. Applications should be made at the Benedum-Trees Building and, if appraisal, title and general terms are in accordance with the act, will be referred to Mays with recommendation that he approve them.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLEY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 1.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

War Lord Bill Murray has called us Oklahomans to arms again. Most states use their National Guard for parading purposes, but Bill will call his out just like you ring for ice water.

Will Rogers

There is a river between Oklahoma and Texas. Bill owns half of it, and Ma Ferguson owns half. If they want to build a bridge let 'em build to the middle and turn around and go back. If they want a dam let 'em dam their half, and let our half alone.

So I guess the next time you hear of me I will be standing in water up to my ankles, right in the middle of Red River, with an old squirrel rifle aimed right at that giant octopus Texas, and if Bill says shoot I will shoot. We will show 'em they can't monkey with our half of the river.

Yours, WILL.

PARENTS MAY GET PENSION

Parents of Herman B. Chuderewicz and Robert O. Armstrong, Pittsburgh Civilian Conservation Corps workers, who were killed by lightning at their camp at Pine Grove, June 30, may receive a pension up to $35 a month. If it is shown that the parents were wholly dependent upon the young men they will receive the maximum. One dependent parent would receive a maximum of $21.88 a month.

William McCauley, secretary of the United States Employes' Compensation Commission at Washington, said today that a claim had not been filed in behalf of the dependents of Chuderewicz and Armstrong, but a note was made of the incident and he stated that the Civilian Conservation Corps would be called upon for a report. He said:

"Widows, minor children and dependent parents are eligible for pensions under the act. The amount to be recommended, of course, will depend upon the degree of dependency."

Deasy will continue his work on the railroad, devoting part of his time to the federal job. J. R. Turney, of St. Louis, is director of the freight service section.

QUEEN'S ADVISERS FOUGHT CUT IN MOORE'S BEQUEST

LAWYER TELLS OF ARGUMENT IN FRANCE

Former Queen Victoria Eugenia, of Spain was taking the proverbial bird in the hand when she settled for $40,000 a $100,000 bequest left her in the will of the late Pittsburgh publisher and former ambassador to Spain, Alexander P. Moore.

Attorney John O. Wicks, of the law firm of Weller, Wicks and Wallace, revealed that today when he told the story of his trip to Fontainebleau, France, to persuade the Queen to take the 60 per cent reduction.

QUEEN AGREES

The decrease, he said, was sought in the interests of Moore's relatives. Queen Victoria, wife of the deposed King Alphonso, readily agreed, but her advisers objected. Wicks said:

"I pointed out to them the greatly depreciated value of the estate and that the adjustment would probably come nearer fulfilling Mr. Moore's desires. And then, too, when he made the bequest, she was queen and although she still has the title, she isn't ruling any more."

Asked if he would have fought to break the will if the queen and her advisers had refused to settle, he said:

"Yes, I think we most certainly would, and I told them that."

The bequest was made by Moore to Queen Victoria to be used by her for any charity she saw fit. He died early in 1930. Wicks says:

"At the date of his will, Mr. Moore was worth approximately $1,500,000 and at the date of his death, his estate was worth approximately $700,000."

VALUE NOW UNCERTAIN

Now he won't say at what he sets its value. His story of how, as representative of the Union Trust Company, the bequest was made and how it was settled for 40 cents on the dollar is this:

"The queen, who is a granddaughter of the late Queen Victoria of England, and a full cousin of King George V, takes a lively interest in philanthropic work. When Mr. Moore was Ambassador to Spain, he learned of the work she was doing among the poor, which doubtless accounts for the legacy.

"Although she has many demands for aid from her former subjects, as well as from the needy who are now her neighbors in France, she agreed that Mr. Moore's intention could much more nearly be carried out if the amount of the legacy were reduced to the benefit of Mr. Moore's dependents.

Seek to Cut Delays On U. S. Highways

With four plans suggested, the National Highway Traffic Study Association West of Pittsburgh is considering means to eliminate congestion and turns on National Highways Nos. 22 and 30 through the Crafton district.

Plans contemplated include a vehicular tunnel from McGann's Corner, in the West End, to a point near Thomas street. The shortest suggested tunnel would have one portal at Crafton boulevard and Noblestown road and the other near Grace and Steuben streets.

Oldest Dentist Works On His 77th Birthday

DR. C. J. REYNOLDS WORKING ON ONE OF HIS PATIENTS

East End Doctor In Practice 57 Years

A birthday is just another day to Dr. C. J. Reynolds, East End dentist, who has had just five weeks' vacation in the 57 years of his practice.

Yesterday was the seventy-seventh birthday of Dr. Reynolds, but he went to his office as usual. He is one of the oldest, if not the oldest dentist now practicing in Pittsburgh. He was born in Clarion County, Pa., in 1856. He was graduated from the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery in Philadelphia, and has been practicing since. His first office was in Pawnee City, Neb., and later in Oil City, Pa. In 1893, he moved to the East End.

Dr. Reynolds remembers when tooth-pulling was done by the village blacksmith. Later, intinerant dentists came to the villages every few months.

Dr. Reynolds has many souvenirs that he and his ancestors collected. Among them is a newspaper issued at the time of the assissination of President Lincoln, April 15, 1865. He has a Bible owned by his grandmother in 1799, and a diary of his father when he earned $150 a year keeping books for the Ross Iron Works.

JUSTICES GET $50,000 FROM COUNTY

An appropriation of $50,000 was made today by the County Commissioners for payment of justimes of the peace for discharged cases, after representatives of the Minor Judiciary had protested the exhaustion of a previous $25,000 appropriation.

In return, the representatives, A. W. McMillen, president of the Minor Judiciary of Allegheny County, and H. M. Davidson, treasurer, pledged support of the Commisioner's investigation into abuses of the discharged cases system.

McGOVERN BUCKS

The Commisioners voted the new appropriation after McMillen and Davidson, both justices of the peace, testified that justices had not been paid for some time. Last year, $150,000 was set aside for discharged cases payments.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern voted against the new appropriation, saying the $25,000 had been allocated pending the investigation which had revealed hundreds of "phantom" cases and resulted in some 15 indictments. He said:

"You fellows will have to work with us, and wipe the black mark off your organization."

BARR URGES SUPPORT

Cmmissioner C. M. Barr, who made the motion for the appropriation, suggested the minor judiciary pass a resolution supporting the Commissioners' independent investigation.

The present investigation was stymied, Barr said, by County ontroller Robert G. Woodside's refusal to allow bookst o be taken from his office and compared with aldermen's records unless in the presence of one of his men.

HORSE DOPERS IN U. S. NET

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(Universal.)—The federal government has welded an air-tight case against race horse dopers, according to Harry J. Anslinger, U. S. Commissioner of Narcotics.

Following his return from Chicago, where he directed the arrests and raids Friday at the Arlington Park track, Anslinger issued a series of orders to expedite prosecutions of racketeers who have been doping horses at tracks all over the country.

Anslinger disclosed analysis of solutions seized by his agents at various tracks showed that more than 90 per cent contained narcotic drugs. This evidence will be presented to grand juries.

Anslinger also disclosed that prominent race horse owners have attempted to bribe agents to drop the doping cases.

Senator Copeland (Dem.), of New York, chairman of the Senate committee investigating racketeering, comes to Washington today to confer with Anslinger on plans for investigating the doping scandal.

FOREIGN POLICE FLAY POLITICS

The belief that America's police troubles are traceable to politics in the police system was the consensus among the European police officials as they left Pittsburgh late last night for New York. They had been guests here of Barron Collier, special deputy police commissioner of New York, at a banquet in the William Penn Hotel.

Many of the officials agreed that the American police system would be benefitted if politics and the parole were eliminated and the courts speeded. Chief Constable A. K. Mayall, of England and Wales, said:

"As a rule American police work is excellent, but the courts and the district attorneys don't back the police up. I recently saw a case where a crime was committed by a man out on bail for two previous offenses. In England he wouldn't have been out."

The same belief was expressed by Florent E. Louwage, chief of the Belgian national detective force. He said:

"In Belgium and most European countries police corruption and graft are virtually unknown. That is because the police, for the most part, are national organizations."

INDIAN WOMAN WINS FORTUNE

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—A 4-word telegram from the Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver informed Hanna Anderson, 26-year-old Creek Indian, that she had suddenly become immensely wealthy after a lifetime of drudgery.

The telegram read:

"Roberts versus Anderson affirmed."

The message meant that Hanna had won a lingering lawsuit that had tied up oil funds now totaling approximately $1,050,000 for several years.

The Indian woman had instituted suit through Merrick A. Whipple, attorney in many celebrated Indian cases, to title to certain restricted Indian lands inherited by her from Lena Yahola Alexander, deceased fullblood Creek.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Child Should Be Given Good Example by Mother

How often have you heard a mother scold a child for putting objects in his mouth? Yet, the same mother sets a bad example by placing pins and other small objects in her own mouth. This is an unfortunate practice because children learn to do things by imitation.

Dr. Copeland

If a mother keeps pins in her mouth when mending or dressing, the child imitates her. The youngster places a pin in her mouth when playing with her doll. Too many accidents can be traced to this habit.

Another danger is to give a baby a button or small toy that can be easily swallowed. It is amazing to learn of the various objects that children swallow. Bits of jewelry, pins, coins, marbles, foods, such as dry beans, coffee grains and kernels of corn, are a few of the many objects swallowed by children.

The perils involved in this accident cannot be overemphasized. The swallowed object may become lodged in the upper air passage and obstruct the breathing. Many cases of asphyxiation have occurred as a result of this accident.

The object may become fixed in the lower part of the windpipe, leading to irritation and infection of the lungs. A swallowed pin may reach the stomach and pass to the intestines. The sharp point of the pin sometimes ruptures or lacerates the intestinal lining.

Never allow a child to play with, or to be near, pins, buttons, nuts, marbles or any small object which he can pick up and put in his mouth. But if the child swallows a foreign body, do not become excited.

Above all, do not pound the victim on the back, for this may interfere with his expelling the object. If you are not sure whether he has swallowed the object, do not put your fingers into his mouth and throat. You may push it down farther.

If the object has disappeared and the little victim does not complain of any pain or discomfort, do not assume that there is no need for alarm. It is possible that he has swallowed it and the object has reached the intestine or is lodged in some part of the lung. This can only be determined by an X-ray picture and it is imperative that this be taken.

Fortunately, medical science is now equipped with an instrument that can detect and make possible the removal of swallowed foreign bodies. It is called the "bronchoscope." It is passed down the throat and, by means of a series of bulbs and lenses, the physician is able to locate and remove objects from the throat, windpipe or bronchi of the lungs. "Bronchoscopy," which is the name given this procedure, has saved the lives of many children and prevented many serious complications.

Though swallowing foreign objects is a common occurrence in children, this accident is sometimes encountered in adults. Here is due to carelessness, and especially to hasty eating and improper chewing of food. Chew your food slowly and carefully and pick the bones out of the fish before swallowing. An impacted fish bone is a painful and dangerous thing to catch in the throat.

GRAHAM, AIDE WILL ATTEND MELLON SUIT

United States Attorney Louis E. Graham and his assistant, John A. McCann, will sit as observers in the suit filed against William L. Mellon, H. L. Stone, Gale R. Nutty, F. A. Leovy, W. J. Guthrie and George S. Davison to collect a total of $11,028,430, representing additional income tax claimed to be due the government.

This was indicated late yesterday when Attorney Graham filed his appearance to income tax suits brought against the defendants by Albert R. Knight, of Lansdowne, Pa., and David A. Olson, of Washington, who, it is stated, under the law are privileged to file claims as informants entitling them to a share in assessments, if any should be imposed.

The amounts claimed to be due the government are: W. L. Mellon, $9,215,636.88; H. L. Stone, $502,636.12; Gale R. Nutty, $502,636.12; F. A. Leovy, $338,004.74; W. J. Guthrie, $135,962.57, and George S. Davison, $333,865.16. It is alleged that they failed to make certain returns as officials of the Gulf Oil Company.

Demurrers have been filed by the defendants, but no disposition has as yet been made of this action by the court. It was stated that the reason that U. S. Attorney Graham filed an appearance was to protect the government's interests, if warranted, in prosecution of the case by counsel for the paintiffs.

ALL'S WELL

What a relief when the news comes by telephone: "All's well!" Gone is your anxiety. You are free from doubts and fears. • But what if you have no telephone in your home? When friends are sick . . . when children are away . . . you are cut off from reassuring news. • In every home there are times when being in touch is vital, urgent. A sound at night . . . a whiff of smoke . . . an accident! Then a telephone is one of life's necessities. Without it you may be helpless. But with a telephone close to hand, the chances are all will be well!

For safety's sake you NEED a telephone in your home. Even as an everyday convenience it is well worth its small cost—less than 10 cents a day. And in emergencies it is priceless.

SPORT COMMENT

Spitters Soon Extinct. Dean Rated Greatest.
Grimes Fighting Time. Aqueduct May Pass.

BOTH DAMP-FLING SURVIVORS FADING

LAST WEEK BURLEIGH GRIMES was here with the Cubs. Tomorrow he'll be here again to join the Cardinals, the same club he pitched against in St. Louis only two days ago. Thus the old boy continues his travels around the National League. He has been with six of the eight clubs, and twice with the Pirates and Cards. But the fact that Burleigh reached the unconditional release stage for the first time last Sunday, when the Cubs turned him loose, probably indicates that he hasn't much further to go. The spitball tribe is almost extinct. For 24 hours, or until Grimes found a new job last night, Urban Faber, of the White Sox, was the only saliva specialist under contract to a major league club.

Urban Faber

It is unlikely that either Grimes or Faber will do any more pitching after this year, so when the 1934 season dawns spitball hurling in the big leagues, in all likelihood, will be only a memory. When other trick deliveries were banned in 1920, the magnates voted that any spitball pitchers who might be registered by the various clubs should be permitted to use the delivery to the end of their careers.

Seventeen spitters in all were registered. The National League had Grimes, Bill Doak, Phil Douglas, Clarence Mitchell, Dick Rudolph, Marvin Goodwin, Dana Fillingim and Ray Fisher. The American had Faber, Jack Quinn, Allan Sothoron, Stanley Coveleskie, Urban Shocker, Dutch Leonard, Ray Caldwell, Allen Russell and Al Ayers. And now Grimes and Faber, the only survivors, are fading. Shocker and Goodwin are dead. Douglas was expelled. Sothoron is coach for the Browns. Quinn is on a sandlot club in Detroit. The rest have passed out of baseball.

GRIMES CONTINUES TO give Father Time a battle with the same spirit and durability that have made him one of baseball's greatest fighters. Burleigh has stood the big league pace for almost 18 seasons, winning 265 games against 206 defeats, and pitching more than 4,000 innings. He would like to be a manager and one day may be seen in that capacity when his pitching days are over.

The Pirates, who had Grimes twice, also tried Faber on the spring trips of 1910 and 1911, but decided to keep Claude Hendrix instead. At the time of the ban in 1920, the Pittsburgh club had another spitballer in Harold Carlson, but President Barney Dreyfuss, having declared himself opposed to the delivery was consistent to the point of declining to register him as such.

THE OWNERS OF the Red Sox may have plenty of trouble in store if they attempt to go through with their reported plan to remove Marty McManus as manager of the club at the end of the season and put Roger Peckinpaugh or somebody else in charge for 1934.

For McManus is deservedly popular in the Hub as a result of the capable way in which he has managed a once despised club, and Boston advices say there will be a terrific howl by press and public if he is dropped after his excellent showing.

'WAY BACK IN July of 1893, the Pittsburgh club, then managed by Al Buchenberger, purchased Pitcher Tom Colcolough from the Charleston club of the old Southern League. As an afterthought, the Charleston management remarked that it had a catcher who might be worth looking over and threw him in as good measure. The catcher was Joe Sugden. Less than a year later, or in June of 1894, Colcolough was released to New Castle and then shipped along to Wilkes-Barre, and yet, 40 years afterward, here we find Sugden, the "good measure," still in the big leagues as a scout for the Cardinals, following a long career as a backstop and coach. Sugden has to his credit one of the greatest pitching finds of any period, for it was he who discovered Dizzy Dean while the latter was pitching for the St. Joseph club in 1930 and recommended him to the Cards as being good enough for immediate major league service.

Dizzy Dean

AND IS SUGDEN still strong for Dean? In raving over Dizzy's ability, old Joe goes to such extremes as to pronounce him the greatest pitcher of all time, not excepting Christy Mathewson, Grover Alexander, Rube Waddell, Lefty Grove or any of the other super-stars whom he has seen come into the big show.

"Much has been said about Dean's fast ball," Sugden remarks, "particularly since he fanned 17 Cubs Sunday. It is so fast that Dizzy led the National League in strikeouts last season, his first full campaign with the Cardinals. But he has such a wide assortment of stuff and is so cagey that I think he could win even without using his fast ball.

"I BELIEVE THERE were only two sacrifices made against the St. Louis club last season while Dean was pitching," Joe continues. "He had the play doped out in advance, pitched accordingly, and then fielded the ball like a flash.

"Dean is anything but a pushover at bat. On the bases, he worries the opposing battery, because he runs fast, can slide, and nobody knows when he is going to steal. You find one in a generation like Dizzy Dean, and maybe none. He is the greatest pitcher, right or left-handed, I have seen come into the majors in the last 40 years."

THE ELECTION OF Lord Burghley as a member of the International Olympic Committee is most unusual. He is the first active Olympic athlete ever to gain that distinction. The committee is the most exclusive international body in existence. It elects its own members and you can't be delegated to it. The head of the group is Count Baillet Latour, of Belgium, and the membership list bristles with titles, there being dukes, counts, barons, lords, generals no end. The three American members are Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jahncke, Gen. Charles Sherill, ambassador to Turkey, and William May Garland. This committee alone has the power to award the Olympic Games to any country, and its authority on other Olympic matters is unlimited.

AN EASTERN HORSERACING possibility that was reported in the spring is said to be stronger than ever since a summer meeting. It is that the Aqueduct track will pass out of the turf picture next year unless the New York state lawmakers enact helpful legislation.

A cut in the prices of admission to the grandstand and clubhouse this year failed to bring the expected increase in attendance, and at its spring and summer meetings Aqueduct was just able to pay running expenses. Receipts at the fall meeting threaten to be even lower. The main burden that makes it difficult for the owners to get by is the annual item of $53,000 for taxes on the property.

ONE ANGLE THAT makes Lou Brouillard feel that he has a good chance to take the New York version of the world middleweight fistic championship from Ben Jeby when they meet on August 9 is that southpaws have been more successful winning titles in that class than in any other.

Alice Marble

Only five southpaws ever have held world boxing titles and three of them were middleweights—Al McCoy, Johnny Wilson and Tiger Flowers. The two others were welterweights and Brouillard himself was one of them. The fifth was Young Corbett.

SOME EASTERN TENNIS critics, after seeing Miss Alice Marble play in the Southern California tournament this year, came back with the report that she was merely a one-shot specialist and did not have a strong enough all-around game to be a serious threat for any of the important titles in the women's division. But her showing in the Longwood, Seabright and other tourneys in the East recently indicated that she is improving rapidly and must be reckoned as a championship contender of the future. Miss Marble, by the way, refuses to wear spiked shoes and she also dislikes wearing the eyeshade so popularized by Mrs. Helen Wills Moody. Yet she wears the eyeshade, not only on sunny days, but also on the cloudy ones. She explains the inconsistency by saying that it keeps her hair back and is much more comfortable than a bandeau.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE VILLAGE ON A RAFT—The shifting operations of the Coast Logging Company on the west coast of Canada preclude the permanency of the workers' living quarters. Each family has, therefore, been given a separate home on a raft, with schools, stores, playgrounds, etc., each occupying a separate raft chained all together. This assures great mobility and moves can be made without interrupting the regular routine of life. The school differs essentially from any other school in the province in that the children must wear lifebelts during their stay in the classroom. In view of the playing proclivities of children, this precaution is, of course, well taken.

BUC SLUGGER LEADS MAJORS WITH 16

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The home run being in bad repute on account of the bad company it has kept in the past dozen years, baseball fans again are getting their biggest "kick" out of the most thrilling hit in the diamond game—the three-bagger!

Chief Wilson

The fast-ball, short-fence environment of the circuit drive, has ruined its reputation, especially in the American League, where the lively rocket still holds forth. Fans generally became surfeited with the cheap drives over short fences, and the officials of the National League have taken steps to lessen the evil, but the fluke round-trippers still are the vogue in several cities of the circuits where joke parks prevail.

FAVORED HITS HERE

Forbes Field being a cradle for the three-bagger, it follows that Pirate rosters are heavy with the names of athletes who stood in front in the manufacture of this long hit—a hit generally is accompanied by a powerhouse display at the plate, a burst of speed on the part of the hitter, the wild antics of the fielders as they try to make a play, and the climatic slide into the three-quarter post to beat the long throw!

The Pirate honor roic of triple threat men is led by the never-to-be-forgotten Chief Wilson, whose 36 three-baggers made in 1912 constitute a record that has defied the de luxe batters of both major leagues. Jimmy Williams, a star infielder for Pittsburgh at the turn of the century, rapped out 27 triples in 1899.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

Nick Altrock

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—As I translate the post mortem, they fired old Gabby Street because the Cards were in a slump. If the batters swat into double plays, its the old Sergeant who takes it on the chin. If the base runners gets caught, Mr. Street is directly accountable to the board of directors. If the pinch hitter fails to make good, then Gabby gave him the signal to strike out. So they tie a canteen on the old top sergeant and give him his discharge.

But it's a good thing St. Louis is on the Mississippi River. With new managers for both its ball clubs within a fortnight, you need a broad waterway like the Mississippi for changing so many horses in midstream. And outside of beer, it's hard to tell just what they want in St. Louis these days.

Winooka-Equipoise Race Is Proposed

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—(Universal.)—A race between Winooka, Australian champion horse, and Equipoise, American champion, could not be held until Winooka has another race under his belt, according to Rufe Nayler, general manager of the visiting horse. He said:

"We will race any horse but Equipoise the next time out. Winooka needs another race before he can give his best against the American thoroughbred."

Schoolboy Rowe Lost to Tigers

DETROIT, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The Detroit Tigers have lost the services of Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, their prize pitching find of the spring training season.

Recurrence of a shoulder injury that he suffered at Philadelphia July 15 has forced the schoolboy out of the lineup for an indefinite period that Manager Buck Harris said might be as long as a month.

Rowe has won seven and lost four games thus far in his first big league season.

WOMEN OPEN DUELING FOR PARKS NET TITLE

ALPERT TWICE WINNER IN MEN'S PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Competition in the fourth renewal of the Pittsburgh Public Parks net championships continues with all-day sessions today on the Frick Park lot, Forbes and Braddock avenues. Added to the man-to-man milling begun yesterday is the women's singles event wherein 17 feminine aspirants seek the crown worn for the past three seasons by Mrs. Jean Artzberger, of Mt. Lebanon.

Mrs. Artzberger, still in the running for municipal laurels, is seeded first in the ladies' group. Second to her is her fellow-Lebanonian, Mrs. Helene Kauffeld, runner-up in the 1932 event. Letitia Schmidt, Carrick star, who dropped a tough final tussle in 1930, ranks third with Elizabeth Recker, Bellevue luminary, fourth. None of the seeded contestants face experienced opposition in the inaugural skirmishing.

KING FACES TEST

First and second-round tilting features the masculine slate. Milton King, top seeded entry, after rallying to land a 7-9, 6-4, 7-5 verdict over Art Gallic, engages a stern rival in the North Side veteran, Bill Blum, this morning. Joe Tucker, another favorite, likewise takes on a clever foe, Ferd Strothman. Tucker yesterday bowled over Jack Lloyd, 6-3, 6-3.

Torrid pre-luncheon joust brings together Joe O'Neill, ex-Duke satellite, and Irwin Solow, Allderdice High contender. O'Neill spurted to out-drive Jerry Goodman, also an Allderdicer, 1-6, 6-3, 5-4, in protracted first frame combat.

Zola Alpert, eighth of the select contingent, led the way into stanza three with successive triumphs at expense of Jim Coleman, 6-4, 6-2, and Albert Wasel, 3-6, 6-1. S. A. McCorkle, rated fourth, downed the able East End youngster, Harry Link, 6-1, 6-4, as Gene Solow, Pitt varsity regular and second of the chosen octet, advanced by default of Ray Yellig.

GURIN BEATEN

In noteworthy opening upset, Bernard Greenberg, husky Allderdice mainstay, thumped Maurice Gurin, Panther stylist, with neatness and dispatch, 6-2, 6-3. A marathon decision went to Don Borland, Wilkinsburg ace, over Gerald Barry, 5-7, 6-3, 6-2.

Remnant of the P. A. A.-Edgewood fracas in the P. T. A. Inter-Club loop is slated for the Suburbanite lot this evening. Three singles and as many doubles melees comprise the card. The Winged Headers have already clinched the Division I crown and with it the Davis Keg. Dr. Dave O'Loughlin's 8-6, 3-6, 6-4 win over Frank Broida last Saturday having driven home the vital spike.

Yesterday's summary:

Men's Singles.

Courage!

That's a big word, ladies and gentlemen, and quite a few people in this man's world lack it, but not Jack King, who formerly fought out of Little Rock, Ark., and who now is making his home here.

It was courage, and nothing else, that enabled King to last six rounds against the devastating punches of Sammy Slaughter, of Terre Haute, Ind., Negro, before succumbing to the final count at the North Braddock Bowl last night.

A slashing right to the chin at the start of the sixth round had Jack hurt and dazed. He tried to fight back, but ran smack into another right hand wallop to the head that dropped him on his back. He rolled over at the count of eight and finished face down on the canvas.

DOWN IN THIRD

Slaughter also had King on the floor in the third round for a nine count. Two short powerful left hooks to the head were responsible this time.

The first round was Slaughter's by a fair margin. He started right off by belting King a pip of a right to the jaw and then outboxed him for the remainder of the heat.

But in the second session, King came back strong and caught Slaughter on the lug, and down went Sammy for a nine recess. After this, however, Slaughter hammered King around unmercifully, and as mentioned above, it was sheer courage that enabled King to last as long as he did. Slaughter weighed 159½ pounds, and King 155½.

After the bout, Bud Taylor, manager of Slaughter, was asked if he would like to box Teddy Yarosz, the local leading middleweight, again. Taylor replied:

"That is one match I sure would like to get for Sammy. Teddy beat my man in Cleveland, but it was a close fight. If they ever get back into the ring again, you can bet it will be a different story."

KING ILL, RUSHED HOME

King was rushed to Little Rock, Ark., following the bout to receive further treatments for a violent attack of malaria, from which he has been suffering for the past month. According to a letter from Dr. L. L. Marshall, of Little Rock, King has had 15 shots in an effort to eradicate the parasites from his blood. Dr. Marshall is eager to repeat the treatment before the fever becomes chronic.

The fighters were paid off on net receipts of $700.

The Alabama Kid, Negro, of Dover, O., 157, didn't show very good in winning over Bruno Sala, of Donora, 164, in the six-round semi-final. The 'Bama had Sala on the floor for a one count from a right to the chin in the third round, but he just did enough glove tossing and no more to eek out a decision.

JACOBY VICTOR

Harry Jacoby, of Monaca, 152½, after flooring Bearcat Amos Jones, East Liberty Negro, 160, in the first round for no count, he finally nailed him again in the sixth and final round with another right that fell Jones for a nine count. Jones got up and then went down without being hit.

He was up without a count, but dropped to his knees as Jacoby came towards him and Referee Red Robinson helped him to his corner, awarding the fight to Jacoby on a technical knockout.

Tony DiPiero, of East Liberty, fought a messy opening go with Lee Peer, a crude novice, of Turtle Creek, but won by a knockout in the third round, when Peer went down from a left hook to the midsection. DiPiero weighed 168 and Peer 175.

Joe Zivic refereed the first and semi-final bouts, with Robinson taking care of the second and main events. Jim McLaughlin and Jim McCoy were the judges. No show was announced for next week.

MRS. CAMPBELL GOLF VICTOR

Trailing Mrs. Campbell was Mrs. C. I. Wendt, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, who had an 88. Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Edgewood, took a 91.

Mrs. Robinoff, of Youghiogheny, and Miss Lindsay Boyd, of Montour Heights, tied for the low net score among the visiting players with 77s.

The third annual tournament of Syria Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., will be staged at the Alcoma Country Club Wednesday, August 23, according to an announcement from J. W. Barber, the recorder.

Caddies at the Washington Country Club, Washington, Pa., are out on a strike. The caddies are demanding an increase of 25 cents a round for 18 holes and 15 cents for nine holes. The present rate is 50 cents for 18 holes and 25 cents for nine.

Chuck Gibbons Wins In Amateur Tourney

OUTFIELDER INJURED

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Kes Rigler, one-armed outfielder for the East Helena baseball team, suffered a compound fracture of his right leg when he collided last evening with the shortstop of an opposing team. Rigler played last summer with the Lincoln club of the Nebraska State League.

Britons Accord Davis Cup Squad Great Welcome

LONDON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Great Britain's tennis stars, carrying the Davis Cup with them, arrived at Victoria Station yesterday to receive as wild and tumultuous welcome as London ever has seen.

PUBLIC LINKS PLAY OPENS

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 1.—A field of more than 170 public links golfers started out today in the annual national public links championship tournament over the Eastmoreland course. Medal play will be in order today and tomorrow. The match play finale is carded for Saturday.

Yesterday, the golfers spent their time tuning up for the test. Top-notchers of the country's municipal golfers were represented. Some never have played over a private course. Old and young, they have gained their experience and reputation on the 300 municipal and pay-as-you-play courses the nation affords.

Pittsburgh, which produced Carl Kauffmann, who won the national title three times, has a single representative in this year's tourney. He is Tom Barr, the Western Pennsylvania southpaw champion.

Motorboat Races Carded at Freeport

A program of three motorboat races, featuring drivers from all sections of the tri-state district as well as New York, will be staged by the Freeport Sportsmen's Association on the Allegheny River at Freeport Friday in connection with the centennial celebration being held by that town. The races will get under way at 6 o'clock.

YANKEES WIN, SLICE LEAD

Associated Press.

The Washington Senators and New York Yankees have wound up their crucial four-game series with honors even and the Senators clinging desperately to a shrinking lead.

Beaten back in their first two attempts to storm the Senators' ramparts, the Yankees made it two in a row over the leaders yesterday as Babe Ruth led an 18-hit assault that gave Joe McCarthy's world champions a 13-9 victory and cut the Senators' lead to one game, just what it had been before the series opened last Thursday.

A double by Ben Chapman, singles by Tony Lazzeri, Bill Dickey, Frank Crosetti and Joe Sewell and errors by Joe Kuhel and Manager Joe Cronin gave the Yankees three runs in that frame and Stewart the benefit of an early shower. Bob Burke came in to find the bases fully populated, but Ruth solved that problem immediately with a smashing triple off the center field wall. The Babe, who also collected two doubles and a single during the afternoon, later scored the seventh run of the inning on a fielder's choice.

In the only other major league game of the day, the St. Louis Browns made Manager Rogers Hornsby's home debut a success as they beat the Cleveland Indians, 12-8, in a wild game that developed into a marathon contest in the seventh inning.

Highland Finalists Finish Al Square

Betty Zimmerman and Mary Louise Thomas, finalists in the mid-summer handicap tournament at the Highland Country Club, were unable to settle the issue in an 18-hole match this morning, finishing all even, and will clash again Thursday for first honors.

UPSETS MARK MEADOW CLUB TOURNEY

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Survivors of first-round play in the Meadow Club's forty-third annual invitation tennis tournament aimed at quarter-final berths today with two seeded players watching the proceedings from the sidelines.

Robert Bryan, of Chattarooga, and Dick Murphy, Hamilton College star from Utica, N. Y., were the authors of two smashing upsets as the tournament got under way yesterday. Bryan conquered J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, seeded sixth, 9-7, 6-8, 6-4, while Murphy, winner of the Longwood Bowl earlier in the season, defeated Dr. Eugene McCauliff, of Yonkers, seeded eighth, 6-3, 8-6.

Bryan was slated to face John McDiarmid, of Texas, in the second round today, while Murphy's rival was to be Peter S. Young, member of the Oxford-Cambridge team.

All of the top four seeded players, Sidney B. Wood, defending champion; Frank Shields, Seabright Bowl winner last week; Gregory S. Mangin, national indoor titleholder, and Frankie Parker, 17-year-old national clay courts king, advanced in straight sets.

VAUGHAN BIDS FOR RECORD

The present monarch of the triple sockers is none other than Arky Vaughan, the sensational shortstop of the Pirates, who, with 16 three-baggers to date, bids fair to lead both leagues this year and to get close to the mark set by Cuyler.

ALL SHOW SPEED

Practically all of the award winners in the three-base hit class have been athletes of dazzling speed and in Vaughan, the Buccos have another representative who possesses the greyhound quality. The Los Angeles flash is generally regarded as the fleetest runner in the National League, and Arky knows how to slide.

The records show no less than 15 Pirates as leaders of the National League in triples since 1899. The list follows:

Owen (Chief) Wilson	36 Triples, 1912
James (Jimmy) Williams	27 Triples, 1899
Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler	26 Triples, 1925
Adam Comorosky	23 Triples, 1930
Paul Waner	22 Triples, 1926
John (Honus) Wagner	21 Triples, 1900
Lloyd Waner	20 Triples, 1929
John (Honus) Wagner	19 Triples, 1903
Harold (Pie) Traynor	19 Triples, 1923
Max (Scoops) Carey	19 Triples, 1923
Max (Scoops) Carey	17 Triples, 1914

GRAPHIC GOLF

WHERE TO MAKE IMPACT

As golf shots become shorter in length the need for accuracy becomes greater. In the drive, distance, down the fairway, is naturally desirable, but when one comes to using the irons not only is exact distance desired, but accuracy as well.

Here the job is to place the ball as close to the objective as possible, a matter that calls not only for good judgment in gauging the yardage to the green, but for a shot that will sail in the line mapped out in the golfer's mind. To accomplish this pains must be taken to give an accurate contact with the ball.

On iron shots the ball should be struck as nearly as possible in the exact center with the center of the clubface when measured vertically but slightly toward the heel of the face when measured horizontally, a position where the weight is more equalized. This gives that satisfying impact that means a well hit shot.

Though the trajectory of an iron swing is considerably more downward than that of a drive, in order to add spin to the ball the player should try to keep the clubhead at right angles to the imaginary line of flight.

HEARST MEET CARDS THRILLS

By STEV

TRADING WILTS AS STREET SIMMERS

After an early feeble rally, the stock market lapsed into an enervated slumber, and at times the ticker tape barely moved. It was one of the dullest sessions of the 1933 bull market. While most stocks appeared only infrequently and indifferently, a number of moderate price gains were maintained. Even the newly encouraged bears were quiet. Grains rallied their limit in Chicago, and wheat soared some 7 cents a bushel at Winnipeg when traders transferred their activities to that center. Cotton recovered some of its previous losses. The dollar continued its advance against foreign exchanges. Bonds were somewhat irregular.

While it was expected that the market would respond to any unusual news, many financial observers were of the opinion—fathered in most instances, of course, by the wish—that securities generally would fluctuate in a rather narrow range during the next few weeks.

In the first place, it was pointed out, the recent inflationary spur seems to have lost some of its power. The wild rush to change dollars into stocks and commodities, it was said, has cooled down considerably along with the comeback of the dollar in foreign exchange markets and reports that the administration has quietly put the brakes on talk of drastic currency expansion.

Banking quarters recall that thus far there has been no actual monetary inflation and that the government has not indicated it would use its wide powers in this matter. Currency in circulation now is considerably under that of the same time last year.

In line with this theorizing, the apparent oversubscription of the new 3¼ per cent Treasury bond offering was cheering to "sound money" advocates. The implication, they hold, is that inflationary fears have greatly subsided and that the government would not even attempt a low-yield bond issue if it had any idea of going the limit on dollar depreciation. The $500,000,000 bond offering, it was thought, might also be a forerunner of a move to convert the more than $6,000,000,000 of outstanding Liberty Fourth 4¼s, which are callable on any interest date.

CHAIN STORES JOIN NRA

Two leading chain store organizations are putting changes in operation into effect to conform with the requirements of the National Recovery Administration.

Sales managers of the central division of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company have voted to support the President's industrial code. This affects 3,500 employes in the Pittsburgh district and 12,000 in the division which includes Buffalo, Cleveland, Columbus and Altoona. New employes will be hired also, it was said.

The Kroger Grocery and Baking Company today announced cooperation with the National Industrial Recovery Act, affecting 18,981 employes throughout 17 middle western and eastern states. The company announced:

"We will go on a new wage scale, conforming wages in the future to whatever scale may be agreed upon between the President and the industry of which we are a part. As rapidly as humanly possible, hours will be made to conform to the standards agreed upon. This will mean the employment of thousands of additional men."

DUAL BENEFIT OF BUYING NOW POINTED OUT

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, N. Y. University.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—This is a good time for most of us to consider buying needed merchandise.

August sales are one. Prices are now almost certainly lower than they will be later.

There are two ways of looking at buying now. One is from the hard-headed business standpoint. This suggests buying now because things are cheaper than they will be.

The other is the broader point of view which suggests that by buying now we can help the government's program of stimulating business.

Wholesale prices have risen sharply. At wholesale, the prices of most things are up anywhere from 10 per cent to over 100 per cent. It seems to be only a question of time for retail prices to follow.

CHEAP ITEMS AVAILABLE

But as usual, retail prices have lagged. I am told that some clothing items are still available in stores at prices which are as low as current wholesale quotations.

Of course, retail prices have risen on average, and the cost of living is higher. But there is every probability of a further rise.

Many stores still have low-priced merchandise which they ordered before the rise in wholesale markets. Many manufacturers speeded up production before they had to raise wages and shorten hours.

It seems to be good business to buy ordinary requirements now. Perhaps, too, it may be well to anticipate future requirements to a moderate extent, as a sort of consumer investment.

SAFER THAN BONDS

In a way, this would be safer than buying government bonds. You buy needed merchandise because prices are to rise, which means that the purchasing power of a dollar is going down. But if the dollar goes down, the interest you get from a government bond will be worthless.

As commodity prices go up higher grade bond values will go down.

If you want to support the new deal, you can do it by buying goods now.

You can help manufacturers and merchants clean up their excess stocks so that they can get higher prices later on.

You can pay somewhat higher prices now to help business men meet their rising costs. These rising costs are a part of the new deal. They mean higher wages, shorter working hours and less competition.

CONSUMER TO RESCUE

Many of the less profitable manufacturers and stores cannot cover their increased costs unless you pay higher prices. The blue eagle would look very blue to them if the consumer should not come to the rescue, for otherwise they may fail.

That would mean less employment.

In short, the government asks you to spend your money so that others may have money to spend. You are asked to turn over your purchasing power to employers, who will turn it over to you if you are an employe.

There are only two limitations which I can think of. One is that we should prefer to buy things which are really conducive to our efficiency. Buying luxuries which we cannot really afford is as bad for the country now as it was in 1929.

The other is that if we buy too much now we will not be able to buy so much later. If all of us were to anticipate all of our requirements for next winter there would probably be less business then.

But within these limits it is a good policy to buy now.

DOLLAR'S GOLD VALUE RISES

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Continued speculative selling combined with the usual seasonal influences lifted the dollar sharply against the pound and other European currencies today. At its current level the dollar is worth 74.3 cents gold against a little more than 72 cents yesterday.

At the same time the European gold currencies also gave ground. Francs slipped off 5 points to 5.23 cents, belgas 23 points to 18.62 cents, Swiss francs 28 points to 25.82 and guilders 53 points to 53.87 cents.

Restricted gold currencies were under pressure, marks losing 41 points at 31.82, lire 5½ points at 7.03½ cents and pesetas 13 points at 11.15 cents.

Scandinavian exchanges eased from 20 to 27 points in sympathy with the pound and the Canadian dollar dropped back ⅞ of a cent to 92⅛ cents.

Green Named Head Of Middle West

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—The election of D. C. Green, nationally known operator of public utility properties and for the past four years, vice president of the Electric Bond and Share Company, New York, as president of the Middle West Utilities Company was announced today.

Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch, receivers, stated that Green would assume full charge of all operating companies controlled by Middle West Utilities Company, located in 18 states.

Allegheny Steel Joins Companies Showing Net Earnings

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

ALLEGHENY STEEL Company has joined the ranks of the organizations which have been restored to a profitable basis.

The report for the second quarter, made public today, shows net profit of $282,917, after deducting depreciation, interest, taxes and other charges. This compared with a net loss of $131,937 in the first quarter and with a net loss of $170,785 in the second quarter of 1932.

The net profit for the second quarter of this year was equivalent to 36 cents a share on 610,695 shares of common stock outstanding after deducting preferred dividend requirements for the period.

* * *

Profit Reported For Half Year

UNLIKE MOST OTHER steel companies which regained a profitable basis in the second quarter, Allegheny earned enough in the three months to offset the loss of the first quarter. As a result, the organization was able to show a profit for the first half of the year. Net profit for the first six months of 1933 was $150,980. This compared with a loss of $537,163 in the corresponding period of the previous year.

When it is realized that production was steadily increasing during the second quarter and that output is being maintained close to the peak rate at the present time, the prospects for third quarter earnings appear particularly good. Even though some recession in the steel business may take place before the end of the summer, the probabilities are that a further increase in earnings will be reported.

* * *

Automobile Demand Important Factor

THE COMPANY concentrates its operations on highly specialized types of steel and this has put it into a position to benefit from the rising automobile production of the past four months. Particular demand has been experienced for alloy steels of the stainless type which are widely used for automobile trim and such parts as headlights.

As a result of its specialization, Allegheny Steel has avoided some of the more severe type of competition which has marked the steel industry for years. This has tended to increase the organization's earning power.

Daily Oil Output Up 21,938 Barrels

TULSA, Aug. 1.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended July 29 totaled 2,746,366 barrels, an increase of 21,938 barrels daily over the preceding week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

Gripping Story of Life Behind The Scenes at Hollywood

By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

Already he was a little blue, feeling in advance the pangs of parting. It would last for a little while and then he would be off again on the endless round of jeering at life and following the devious seduction of his will o' the wisp profession.

But something was giving him an odd feeling of danger. A premonition that he might not be able to sustain himself in his world of loyalties and humor, his universe of careless generosities and steel cold nerve.

Very slowly he brought himself to the clear realization that he wanted Leni as he had never wanted any woman before. Without egotism, he felt he could have her.

He was thinking thoughts now that welled up from the depth of his being. He could have her and all that went with her — the pleasantly-flavored home like this, her glorious individuality, her rich voice, her golden hair. He could possess her every moment of his life, from now on. He could . . .

Then the truth struck him like a fist between the eyes. It was not he who could possess Leni Luneska . . .

She would possess Lucky Cavanaugh!

The revelation came to him like the stripping away of a mask. Marriage to Leni would bind and stifle him in a silken cocoon of love. It would mean the surrender, the captivity of Lucky Cavanaugh.

Everything else would all be over.

THOUGHTS INTERRUPTED

In Leni's fragile body was an essence too potent to be subjected to any man. Before long — even yet tonight — he would begin to care so much that he would cease to be free and independent. She had too much charm and magnetism to be taken lightly. The whole proposition was getting clearer to him now.

There was no danger of the fascination fading as he had fancied at first. It would grow in dominance until he would be completely dissolved in its power. Instead of living to please himself, he would be living to please another. His hands were resting on the arms of the chair and it seemed as though he could feel a flow of his personality draining out at the tips of his fingers.

"The husband of a motion picture star . . ." he muttered. "What becomes of men who marry stars? . . . Lucky Cavanaugh on the edge of the crowd with a smirk on his face . . . and a white poodle under his arm . . ."

The silence in which he sat was rent and torn apart suddenly by the imperative ringing of a telephone somewhere in an adjoining room. Cavanaugh let it ring for a while and then since no one else stirred to answer it, he rose and bumped against a few chairs until he found the instrument.

A CALL FOR HIM

His intention was not to call Leni but pretend he was a servant and take any message.

"Hello," he said in a guarded voice.

He had taken no trouble to disguise his tone. There was an instant of silence in which the apparatus he held seemed curiously alive. Then a woman spoke with a voice like a warm bitter fluid.

"Hello, Lucky—thought I'd catch you there."

His first impulse was to hang up, but he knew the capabilities of Annette. She would keep ringing all night, or worse, get into a car and come out. Annette . . wild . . . Latin . . imperious . . .

"What do you want?" he asked, lowering his voice so that it would not be heard upstairs.

"You're not putting anything over on me, Lucky! I saw you in the box with her and I knew what would happen. Why didn't you call me up when you got back from Caliente?"

* * *

Cross-wise across the bed on top of the silken coverlets Leni had flung herself with soft abandonment to small child-like sobs that came more from exhaustion than grief.

Immeasurable relief arrived with the tears.

LENI HEARS BELL

In pajamas of heavy blue silk with her small feet bare and white she seemed smaller and younger than she really was. After a while she curled over on her side and waited, her eyes and her face still wet with tears. She was quieter now, yet somehow alert in her heart as the tide of physical comfort began to creep over her.

Somewhere in the house Cavanaugh was present. Beyond that fact she had no plans—no decision. It was enough to feel the sensation of his secure protection.

For the first time in her life somebody was watching over her. All of her anguish, as drowsiness stilled her, seemed drifting away. Her nerves were no longer tight as violin strings but were loosened and soothed. It was indescribably blessed. The self-conscious knowledge of his presence was a cloud of contentment surrounding her.

The bell would be unheard by the servants sleeping in another part of the house. It made no difference. After a time she was conscious—without actually catching his voice—that Cavanaugh was talking with someone on the phone.

The house was so still that she could hear the masculine quality of his voice although it was subdued to mere murmuring. As she listened she became wider awake. Her feet swung to the floor and her toes found their way into soft, flat-soled slippers.

Whatever the conversation downstairs was about she knew with a small sharp instinct that it concerned herself. Step by step Leni moved into the hall and softly down the stairs. She drew nearer to Cavanaugh in the semi-darkness.

HEARS HIM TALKING

Her heart moved a little faster. There was nothing complicated in her motive. It was a simple primitive desire to be near him. The fact that he was talking to somebody was really secondary. On the lower floor she turned an angle of the hall and came up to the door of a small room where he stood dimly outlined, the reddish tip of a cigarette in his hand punctuating the night. He was leaning against a shelf of books, holding a French telephone. His back was toward Leni, a silhouette with broad shoulders and straight legs.

For a moment she stood regarding him, mysteriously gratified by the artistic rightness of his proportions. He was listening to someone who talked for a long time. Then he spoke with the tone of argument.

"All right—tomorrow then. Yes, I promise."

Leni began to have the uncomfortable feeling of eavesdropping. She was on the verge of letting him know she was there when he spoke again.

"Will you be a good girl, Annette, please?" he pleaded with muffled exasperation. "Calm down and go to bed. You're just exciting yourself over nothing. I can't keep arguing with you all night. I care exactly as much for you as I always did—but I'm not all interested in your hysterics. If you haven't any pride you certainly ought to have a sense of humor——"

SPEAKS HARSHLY

Once more he was interrupted. Time enough for Leni to glide into the room with a soft swishing of her silken pajamas. Her hand went unerringly to the switch on a table lamp in the room and the secrecy of the room vanished in a flood of amber light. Cavanaugh's shoulders sleek in dinner jacket, swung around. Leni saw a new face, darkened with moody impatience.

"Wait a minute," he said into the telephone and put it down.

"I thought I'd give you a little light," Leni said, looking straight at him. "We have plenty of electricity in this house."

"Don't be foolish!" he said to her sharply. It was the first time he had ever addressed her in that tone.

An unpleasant warmth was beginning to prickle her skin. Her face, she felt, was beginning to get white with a nameless passion. A tension like rubber bands was drawing her brows together.

"Don't mind me," she said coldly. "I'm going back upstairs. You needn't keep the lady waiting."

"I'm sorry this happened," he stated almost curtly. "A fool woman saw me with you tonight and called me up here. I don't know how much you heard of what I said to her—"

"Very little. It doesn't matter, I assure you."

Cavanaugh took a step forward and put both his hands on Leni's shoulders. "I'm sorry—it does matter. I've annoyed you—"

Tears began to flood her eyes. Cavanaugh's hands, warm and compelling, continued to hold her in a steadying grasp.

"If there is anything in the world that is disgusting it's a jealous woman!" said Cavanaugh grimly. "I just hung up the telephone on one of that kind. You're sore at me—because she called me up here. I'm telling you—right now—that we've both too much at stake to clutter it up with any darn foolishness."

She gulped in her throat like a little girl. "Will you please . . . let me go . . ."

"I will not!"

With one hand he turned out the lamp then, as though she had no weight at all, picked her up in his arms like a child and started toward the stairs.

Synopsis

At the premiere of her latest picture, Leni Luneska, beautiful star, is stunned by the appearance of her jailbird husband. He insists upon recognition as her husband. Lucky Cavanaugh, handsome gambler, tries to make Kruger leave. Kruger empties his gun at Cavanaugh without effect, then rushes into the next office in a rage. He surprises burglars looting a safe and is shot dead. Later as Leni and Cavanaugh are about to leave the theater to avoid questioning, Detective Mulrooney stops them. They deny knowing Kruger, Cavanaugh telling a plausible story of how he and Leni met, fell in love, and were running away from Leni's elderly escort. Lucky cautions Leni against talking, but she tells all to Mulrooney. Mulrooney gives Cavanaugh four days in which to find the guilty man. A gangster friend of Cavanaugh warns him about the men who shot Kruger. They fear Cavanaugh will "squeal." After leaving the man, Cavanaugh goes into Leni's home.

CLOSET ACCESSORIES

CLOSET ACCESSORIES PATTERN NO. 504

By LAURA WHEELER

Today interior decorators give much time and thought to making the closet beautiful and harmonious with the room. This collection of closet accessories—a laundry bag that is most practical and so easy to make—the ever-welcome clothes bag—the practical hanger with the cover that protects the dress—and the ever necessary shoe bag—gives an opportunity for dressing up the closet in a most interesting way. Each article is decorated with flowers that are all made of different scraps of materials, their effectiveness being enhanced by the simple leaf sprays. The flowers are made from a flower pattern and are two pieces of material sewn together, with an embroidered center. The leaf sprays are done in embroidery. The pattern, No. 504, comes to you with a transfer pattern of the flowers and leaf sprays, detailed directions and yardage for making each article.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

We expect by the time you will be reading this that the picnic will be all over for another year, and so let's ask right now—wasn't it lots of fun? Did you or did you not have one of the swellest times ever?

Write to Quin Hall and Junior and tell them how you liked the picnic, especially you Captains. And be sure to tell us what you liked best at the park.

Watch for the Junior Patrol news about the picnic tomorrow. We are going to try to have some scouts out there in the park to see how each and every one of you get along—so that we will have some interesting comments in the Mail Box.

"Enclosed you'll find my pledge to join a club which sure is going to be a success if we all do our part. The World's Fair is a big hit with everybody because that's what the people want it to be. I think our club can be big if all the members help us reach our destination, which is SUCCESS."

And so say we all, John. Say, pal, why don't you start a club? That's a swell way to help the Junior Patrol be a success, and we'll be waiting to hear from you again. Twenty members wouldn't be too many!

Now look at this letter, fellows. It's from three girl friends, Emma Smarslok, Elaine Taylor and Eleanor Sullivan, of R. F. D. No. 1, Lemont Furnace, Pa.:

"My two girl friends and I would like to be in the Junior Patrol. We want to start one in our town. We will write all the girls' and boys' names in who want to be in the Junior Patrol. We got the 3 cents, we ran in the house to write the letter, then we ran down to the mail box to mail it!"

Looks like we are going to have a good patrol in Lemont Furnace, doesn't it fellows? That's quick work in writing a letter and mailing it. Lots of people write letters, forget to put stamps on them, forget to mail them, and even forget to write them in the first place.

A good Junior Patrol member will try his best not to be forgetful. One of the best ways not to be forgetful is to finish what you start right away, just the way the three girls did.

And here's a letter reporting a new North Side Patrol starting. It's from Anna Mae Glitsch, of 1248 Dickson street. She says:

"I am reporting five new members and I want to join myself. Us girls wish to organize a club. We wish to present our membership cards at each meeting. And we want to be sure to be present at the picnic. Because we have planned a good time."

Fine and dandy. Just as soon as your new Patrol has 10 members, Anna, the Captain will get an armband. Let us know who your Captain is just as soon as she is elected.

Remember, fellows, the way to be a Captain is to organize a new Patrol and hold the first meeting to elect officers.

Tomorrow, without fail, we are going to print the first letter writer's HONOR ROLL. Watch for it and watch for the first picnic news!

According to the National Education Association, with more leisure in prospect, Americans must learn to fill their spare time with "personal creative activity."

BUT EVERYTHING'S ALL RIGHT NOW!

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Dan H. Grant got a marriage license from Recorder Perry last month. Dan, like most other men, dreaded the publicity, within charivari time, so he asked the recorder to hold it up a few days.

The recorder held it up and then forgot all about it.

So, Friday, Dan was in. "How'd it come that nothing was ever said about me getting married?" he asked. The recorder brought his hand down on the table. "By gum, Dan," he said, "I forgot all about it."

ONE ON THE NOSE

(Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, associate director of public relations for the Motion Picture Distributors' Association.)

"The oversexed picture is hateful in Hollywood and the fault lies with the public for accepting this type of offering."

(A Budding Author Decides Not to Venture It.)

Now I am a would-be modernist,
And there isn't a word that I wouldn't use
In depicting humanity's swill.
I would write of the slums, and would write of the dives,
And go seeking my book's subject matter
In back streets and alleys, for low talk and sallies
Mid odor and tumult and clatter.
I think there's good training minutely explaining
The words that on fences are writ,
Insist that the reader lacks wit.
But though I have learned the right manner to say it,
And would tweak any censor's fat snout,
I've reached the conclusion I will not essay it;
There's nothing to write right about.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY

An Interruption

Giving Nature a Hand

Bugs Baer

You Can Always Resign

Most amazing thing about states repealing the eighteenth guess is how far they have gone.

Some of them want to throw away the rest of the Constitution and call it a day. That sort of exuberant patriotism is stretching the web too far. The initial surprise was when New Hampshire okayed beer and delighttful wine and then went right through on the paper hoop to legalize hoss racing.

The only hoss racing in New England was when a mule got scared at a hunk of yellow paper. But, now a farmer can tap wires, stuff sponges up a hoss' nose or do anything they ever did at Saratoga or Jamaica.

Slot machines also made their coy appearance in many states. The boys are only waiting for the grass to be cut to shoot dice on the state house lawn.

The result is the logical outcome of throttling people for 13 years. Having busted out of jail they are capering and rejoicing.

We are afraid they will carry their celebrations too far and that The Big will have to revolve wildly in his swivel chair and write a new set of handcuffing amendments.

However, we will retard the reforming legislation and give the public a fair trial. If the people fail to simmer down in 13 years we will act. This threat holds good for 1946. On that date teacher will keep everybody after school.

We will not be hasty. The prohibitionists fixed the elapsed and corrected time that constitutes a fair trial. The probationary period is 13 years.

Up until that time you can do anything you want. While we don't approve of slot machines, betting and gambling, we can't do anything if they are legal. On the contrary, we might even show our respect for the law by drawing up a chair.

Seems that the politicians of the nation have suddenly realized that you cannot pass laws against fun.

Some people like beer, some favor betting on races, some ride bicycles. And, if the writer doesn't like those things, he always has the privilege of resigning from the people.

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT
Its People Earn Much, Spend Freely and Save Wisely

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

This is the Sun-Telegraph's Birthday; a New Year of Service Begins

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH is celebrating its birthday today. It is six years old.

Those responsible for the management of this newspaper, the men and women who gather the news and handle the advertisements, those who print the paper, and those who distribute it, are all proud on this birthday—proud of the record that the Sun-Telegraph has made, proud of its achievements—and grateful for the opportunities it has afforded them to serve the people of the Pittsburgh District. They believe their fellow-Pittsburghers also will find cause for pride and gratitude in the Sun-Telegraph.

The Sun-Telegraph, today observing its sixth anniversary, is an infant, of course, only in years, only in the sense that it continues to grow. In every other respect it is a mature newspaper of impressive stature—powerful, active, useful. It is welcomed in hundreds of thousands of homes in Pittsburgh and the Tri-State District as a friend, guide and counsellor.

The Sun-Telegraph has won the esteem of Pittsburghers because it is a Pittsburgh paper, and its chief concern is for the welfare of Pittsburghers. Pittsburghers comprise the large majority of its readers, and in the formulation of its policies things that will advance the best interests of the city take precedence over everything else.

* * *

THERE is a good reason for this, besides the desire to be helpful: The Sun-Telegraph is produced by Pittsburghers, and whatever contributes to the city's prosperity and makes it a more pleasant place in which to live adds to their own comfort and happiness.

The Sun-Telegraph is staffed in every department by resident Pittsburghers, most of whom have spent a large part of their lives here, and who intend to remain here. The publisher, the editors, the reporters, the photographers, the artists, the compositors, the stereotypers, the pressmen, and those in charge of the advertising, the circulation and the accounts, live in Pittsburgh and in many cases were born in Pittsburgh. They know the city and its people, and therein lies one of the reasons for the Sun-Telegraph's intense interest in Pittsburgh things.

Employes of the Sun-Telegraph have their homes in the city, and in numerous instances own them; they send their children to Pittsburgh schools; they attend Pittsburgh churches; they belong to Pittsbugh fraternal, civic, patriotic and business organizations; they invest their money in Pittsburgh enterprises, and they spend their money in Pittsburgh stores. Hence they have very powerful motives to work for the improvement of all conditions that affect the well-being of Pittsburghers. That they have thus worked, and worked hard, the record of the past twelve-month bears ample witness.

* * *

THE Sun-Telegraph never loses sight of the fact that its primary function is to furnish the news. During the past year, as ever since its organization, it covered the field of local news thoroughly, and at the same time presented the news of the State, the Nation and the world in the dispatches of special correspondents and the reports of the International News Service, Universal Service and the Associated Press. The wheat in the news was winnowed from the chaff, and the facts presented simply, crisply and impartially.

Both in the news columns and editorials constructive efforts were made to defend the people and promote their welfare. Only a few of these efforts can be mentioned here:

REDUCTION OF CITY TAXES was earnestly advocated and achieved.

PROTECTION OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS was successfully accomplished. The attacks of politicians who sought to throw the Board of Public Education into the maelstrom of factional politics, and the attacks of those who sought to lower the standards of the schools by withholding appropriations, were repelled.

PROTECTION OF THE BALLOT was unceasingly sought. Frauds at the polls were exposed, and the prosecution of the swindlers insisted upon. More than 100 political leaders, public officials and members of election boards are now awaiting trial in the United States District Court for election offenses.

CONSTRUCTION OF RESERVOIRS FOR FLOOD CONTROL and other much needed public works was persistently urged. Emphasis was laid on the importance of these projects as a means for helping to relieve unemployment. This campaign is bearing fruit.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE PITTSBURGH WATER FRONT was demanded, and the demand has fallen upon receptive ears.

ECONOMY IN CITY AND COUNTY GOVERNMENT received a great deal of attention, and in a series of informative articles instance after instance was pointed out in which expenses could be cut without crippling the public service.

NEPOTISM IN CITY AND COUNTY OFFICES was condemned and numerous cases cited in which it was practiced.

RACKETEERING was made the subject of investigation, and the attention of the people and the public authorities directed to the alarming extent of this evil in Pittsburgh.

REPLACEMENT OF THE FEDERAL INCOME TAX WITH A GENERAL MANUFACTURERS' SALES TAX was vigorously championed by the Sun-Telegraph.

PROMOTION OF TEMPERANCE, THROUGH REPEAL OF THE VICIOUS PROHIBITION LAWS, and the use of beer and light wines instead of the vile liquor of the bootleggers, was advocated.

MODIFICATION OF THE BLUE LAW was and is an important plank in the Sun-Telegraph's platform. The Legislature provided for a referendum in municipalities on the question of Sunday baseball.

BUYING OF AMERICAN GOODS BY AMERICANS and the maintenance of tariff barriers to protect Pittsburgh products from the competition of the pauper labor of Europe and Asia were also the subjects of vigorous campaigns which met with enthusiastic endorsement.

* * *

THE success of the Sun-Telegraph is due, also, to the loyalty of its readers—a great army of men and women and children in every walk of life, comprising the most intelligent and progressive element in the community.

Just as the life-blood finds its way into every organ and tissue and capillary of the body, so the Sun-Telegraph penetrates into every section and ward and precinct of the Pittsburgh District. Its circulation blankets the area. There is not a neighborhood in which the Sun-Telegraph is not read regularly and widely.

The readers of the Sun-Telegraph are the forward-looking people, the thinkers, the strivers, those who accomplish things and attain success. The Sun-Telegraph is supported by the most estimable sections of the population, and from their support it derives no little part of its power to do things for the good of Pittsburgh.

The success of this newspaper is due, also, to the quality of its advertisements and advertisers. The "store news" of the Sun-Telegraph is one of its attractive features. The best shops, the leading merchants, large and small, the foremost manufacturers, utilize the pages of this widely circulated paper in generous measure. They advertise in the Sun-Telegraph regularly and persistently, for they have found it profitable to do so.

* * *

IT IS a pleasure to call attention, in this connection, to the fact that exceptionally interesting "store news" is in prospect for the readers of the Sun-Telegraph in August. For many years it has been the custom of progressive merchants to promote sales of certain lines of Fall and Winter merchandise in the month of August. This was an advantage to the consumer, because the merchants, by placing orders unusually early with manufacturers, were able to obtain substantial price concessions, which, in turn, were shared with the retail customer who was willing to anticipate his needs.

In view of the rising trend of commodity costs, which presages advances in retail prices later on, the present August sales assume unusual importance to every family. The shrewd and far-seeing merchants who advertise regularly in the Sun-Telegraph anticipated the advance in wholesale costs and invested heavily in stocks at lower price levels. They are accordingly in a position to offer this merchandise at attractive figures, thus protecting their customers against the inevitable increase in prices later on.

The Sun-Telegraph, always alert to the interests of the business community and the general public, is supporting this program of the local merchants because of its economic value to the budget of the average family. So throughout this month thrifty persons should watch for these offerings in this newspaper.

The classified advertisements—those pithy, pointed paragraphs in which property owners and those in search of homes, sellers and buyers, landlords and tenants, employers who seek help and workers who seek jobs, finders and losers, present their needs and tell their stories—these "want ads" constitute another important feature of the Sun-Telegraph and add to its popularity.

* * *

THE Sun-Telegraph is grateful to all who have contributed to its success during the past year—to its readers, its advertisers and its employes. On this happy birthday it holds them in thankful remembrance.

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH WILL CONTINUE DURING THE ENSUING YEAR TO SERVE PITTSBURGH AND PITTSBURGHERS TO THE BEST OF ITS ABILITY.

For Narcotic Addicts

An Important Reform First Suggested by William Randolph Hearst Is Brought to Fruition.

More than four years ago Congress unanimously enacted the Porter bill, authorizing the government to establish two federal farms for the treatment and rehabilitation of narcotic addicts.

Preliminary appropriations were made in 1930.

The federal officials have now been able to find suitable locations for the two institutions — one at Lexington, Kentucky, the other near Fort Worth, Texas—and Saturday was signalized by the laying of the cornerstone at the Lexington farm.

Thus the government brings to fruition a reform which was first suggested by William Randolph Hearst and for which the United States Public Health Service and the Hearst newspapers have consistently contended.

There is almost universal agreement among penologists and experts in narcotic problems that the farm plan is the best method of dealing with drug addiction.

"Dope" victims are medico-social cases. That which begins as a weakness or a vice quickly becomes a disease.

Yet the policy has long been to attempt to cure the victims of "dope" by treating them only as criminals. Thousands of them are herded together in our prisons, where the victims cannot be cured, where segregation is impossible, and where contact spreads the so-called "habit."

About a third of the inmates of the Atlanta and Leavenworth federal prisons are addicts. All of them need special care and treatment.

These prisoners will, in every case possible, be transferred under the new policy to the federal farms for scientific cure and vocational training.

The policy will also be broad enough to admit any other addicts to the farms.

Penologists and medical men believe the federal farms will soon lead to the establishment throughout the country of state farms for the same kind of work.

Conditions are such that the federal government alone cannot cope with the problem. Every state has an equal duty.

At the same time both federal and state governments must continue and intensify their effort to break down the "dope" racket.

With 39 nations adhering to the International Narcotic Control Treaty, a most effective blow has been struck at the foreign sources of the illicit narcotic trade.

Enactment by all states of the uniform state narcotic law—already operative in Nevada, New York, New Jersey and California—will enable the Federal government to carry out its obligation under the Geneva Treaty, and will close the loopholes of escape now existing in our defective legal system.

The uniform state narcotic law ranks with the federal farm plan and the international protocol as the three most efficient anti-dope measures yet advised.

Detours on the Love-Route

"Why do you write so much about the frailties of men?" inquires a reader. Because, dear heart, that's the only subject on earth more interesting than the follies of women!

* * *

There are lots of detours along the path of love, these days; but, if the women have their way, they'll all lead back to the bridal path.

* * *

Even a woman who bullies and henpecks her husband around the house likes to think of him as a big, important, impressive figure down town, around the office.

Many a careless young bachelor who starts out (with his fingers crossed) in search of a little mid-summer adventure and a few free kisses, soon finds himself either pushing a perambulator or paying alimony at the same old desk.

* * *

Sometimes, a man imagines that his sudden flair for flappers and whoopee parties is a sign of the return of youth, when it is merely the beginning of his second childhood.

The average American man regards serious love-making as a weakness, and blushes at a romantic impulse. As a husband, he takes the blue ribbon—but as a lover, he is about as subtle as a fire-alarm, as graceful as a blimp and as exciting as a dish of cold consomme.

* * *

The bride who wears her grandmother's wedding veil probably has a wistful feeling that lace, like marriage, was made to last a lot longer in those old days.

* * *

Occasionally you meet a man who is so "stern and rock-bound" looking that you just know his wife closes her eyes and holds her breath when he kisses her.

* * *

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—It strikes me the best entrance of any actor into a performance was that of Charlie Chaplin in his film, "City Lights." The opening scene showed the unveiling of a civic monument with crowds and a band. A beautiful girl pulled the string and there was the ragged Chaplin asleep in the statue's outflung arms.

A similar idea was previously exploited, however, by McIntyre and Heath in a musical. Heath was tossing some hay with a pitchfork out of a livery stable mow and dropped his roustabout partner. Fred Stone had an amusing and acrobatic entrance in a play at the Globe.

He was suddenly shot high through a trapdoor of the stage, probably 10 feet in the air. When he landed covered with foam and with a foolish grin, he exclaimed: "I put in one raisin too many!" Nat Wills rolled out, a tatter of rags, when the grocer let down his morning awning.

Frank Daniels entering, jiggling his pop-eyed eyebrows, was always good for a laugh. Leon Errol's gutta percha leg also fluted convulsions. Grock, the clown, had a double peep half-body out one side of the stage. And in a flash Grock bounded out the other side. A startling illusion.

The cut-rate theater ticket monopoly which paid the late Joe Le Blang a half million a year for years is a memory. Cut-rate ticket slips are handouts at restaurants, newsstands, speakeasies and store counters. Usually there is a small "service charge" at the box office. One movie house is giving away "passes" which for a dime admit bearer. Also several bootblacks.

Ferdinand Pecora is one of the most enthusiastic members of the New York Elks, No. 1, and next in succession to the chair of exalted ruler. His leisure is spent at the club, where he is a devotee of the game of "hearts."

The Harriman National Bank, since closing, has been ablaze with lights—as someone said "the liveliest looking corpse on the avenue." In its day it was the town's most swagger counting house, and depositors whose money was tied up for weary months include leading publications, politicians, social celebrants and worldlings known as "smart guys." It was also the reputed depository of many crepe de chine ladies who in the full flush of the boom had day and night chauffeurs. And now floriate in walkups out Astoria way.

Sam Rosoff, ex-newsboy, whose voice still has an extra-edition husk, and who made a fortune building subways, is noted at the race tracks for his exuberance when one of his racing stable entries wins. He grips the person standing nearest with a violent bear hug.

Perhaps the staunchest tie between stage brothers is that linking Willie and Eugene Howard. Eugene is a capable enough straight man. But Willie is the fireworks—the whole show. Yet he will take no contract not including his brother, and salaries are equal. Willie has been offered $500 more a week to go it alone. But refused.

Roy L. McCardell tells of a ball player in a Morning Glory League attending a hotly contested 11-inning tie game between Chicago and New York. He wired friends around the cracker barrel back home: "Best game I ever seen. Eleven endings. Nary one made nary one."

When an older generation of writers come to town—Meredith Nicholson, Harry Leon Wilson, Booth Tarkington and such; they usually dine one evening at the Brevoort in the shadow of Washington Square. It's a sentimental gesture toward what was once the center of a super-Bohemia. The Brevoort, built in 1845, is New York's oldest hotel. It was built on the corner of a farm of Hendrick Brevoort, once Mayor of Dutch Haarlem, and was a favorite of King Edward when Prince of Wales.

* * *

The last time I dined at the Brevoort was with a group including Sinclair Lewis. Outside of literati, the clientele is largely French. A giddyap mademoiselle next table was fluttering in broken Gallic. Like this: "We went to ze opera, ze art gallery, ze musse, essetraw, essetraw." Always she wound up with "Essetraw, essetraw!" Irvin Cobb finally figured it out. She was saying: "Et cetera, et cetera!"

Isn't It So?

The man who does the least talking often has the most to say.

Some people boast about where and when they were born, but not why.

The Human Side of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

SOMEWHERE in the sand-swept waste of the great Gobi Desert in Central Asia, lie hidden the bodies of the first man, the first true human. And somewhere in the trackless Gobi, hidden for long centuries, lies the buried treasure of the Mongol conqueror, Genghis Khan. But Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, go-getter for the American Museum of Natural History, would gladly turn his back on the gold and jewels of the Great Khan if he could find the trail to the ancient bones and the fascinating secrets they contain.

For years Dr. Andrews has been seeking the greatest prize of paleontology, convinced as he is that the secret of man's origin and kinship with other forms of animal life is to be found on the tableland which bred the Aryan peoples. He is set to go again, and this fall, from a new headquarters in Manchuria, at Mukden, he will make a fresh start. He was forced to abandon his former headquarters and base in Peiping, China, because of the insatiable greed of blackmailing Chinese officials. Before he did so he gave the rapacious generals a piece of his mind, and anyone who knows Dr. Andrews knows that his language must have seared the ears of the greedy ones.

On His Tenth Trip To Gobi Desert

UPON the lecture platform, in evening clothes and with his black-ribboned pince-nez, he is Dr. Andrews, as he unfolds, in the meticulous English of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, the whys and wherefores of dinosaurs and their eggs, and expatiates upon the dawn of humanity. But get him downright mad, as the Chinese officials finally succeeded in doing, and he speaks the language of a Texas cowboy whom he greatly resembles when his lean, six feet are attired in khaki, leather puttees and a six-gallon sombrero.

He is bound for Manchuria on his tenth expedition to the Gobi, which he believes is the cradle of humanity. The sand-whipped, arid, Arctic-cold or jungle-hot Gobi is a long jump from Beloit, Wisconsin, where Roy Andrews was born some 49 years ago, the son of a country doctor. Animal life fascinated him even as a youngster. At Columbia University he helped pay his way by mounting deer heads. And then, one day, he walked down to the Museum of Natural History and applied for a job. He got into the office of the President, the late Henry Fairfield Osborn, whose lore of the antiquity of man and knowledge of paleontology had given him a worldwide celebrity.

Not much impressed by the country boy from Wisconsin, Dr. Osborn asked the lad what he was willing to do for seven dollars a week. The reply was all-inclusive: "Anything." So Roy Andrews went to work at odd jobs in the rooms and corridors of the vast museum, and presently he was building a whale from the skin of a leviathan stranded on the coast of Newfoundland, and from exact measurements taken by himself. He was so successful at whale-building that Dr. Osborn tried him out at other and more important tasks, and presently he was sent to China.

That was the way he got the habit of bringing home the bacon and the eggs that went with it—the dinosaur's eggs. For his first astounding find was a nest of eggs laid by the monsters that roamed the earth many millions of years ago, and that came to their end when the Gobi was young, before the human race had emerged from the slime of the sea. The recent stay he has made in New York, prolonged because of the war that is raging in Manchuria and North China, is the longest that he has made in any one place in 25 years.

Has Two Sons At Oxford

DR. ANDREWS has two sons who are being educated at Oxford. He has a casket full of decorations from governments, universities and scientific societies. His life has been one long, thrilling adventure, and he knows more good stories of far places and strange people than almost anybody who walks the good earth today. He likes polo, good talk and detective stories, and will lose himself in a crime thriller not half so exciting as any one of 20 adventures he himself has had with Chinese bandits and arrogant Chinese generals, or fighting sand storms and wild tribesmen in the Mongolian deserts.

Some men spend their lives pursuing gold or fame, or riding the highhorse of hobby, but Roy Chapman Andrews has given more than a quarter of a century to pursuing a scientific dream, a will-o-the-wisp of humanity, the secret of man's origin. When he finds it, as he is certain that some day he will, he will be able to tell us how closely related we are to the apes, if related at all; whether or not we ever lived in trees in the dim and misty ages of a hundred million years ago; why we are like what we are like and do what we do as human beings, not as tailed or tailless monkeys and apes.
